TAFT CLINCHES SENATE GOP PRIZE

Armed Forces Secretaries Named By Ike

Stevens, Talbott, Anderson Chosen

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower today named the civilians who will head the Army, Navy and Air Force under Charles E. Wilson, secretary of defense-designate, in the Republican administration.

The choice of a deputy to Wilson also was announced. All four are business men and industrialists and one is a Democrat. They are:

Secretary of the Army—Robert Ten Broeck Stevens, 53, of South Plainfield, N. J., a textile executive, veteran of two wars and father of a GI.

Secretary of the Navy — Robert Bernerd Anderson, 42, of Vernon, Tex., a Democrat, manager of a half-million acre ranch, with oil as well as cattle interests.

Talbott Air Force Chief

Secretary of the Air Force—Harold E. Talbott, 64, of New York, a member of the Chrysler Corp. Finance Committee and an Eisenhower advisor during the presidential campaign.

Deputy Secretary of Defense — Roger M. Kyes, 46, of Bloomfield Hills, Michigan, who, like Wilson, is a General Motors executive.

Anderson's appointment was another recognition of the support the once Solid South gave to the GOP. He is a Democrat who backed Eisenhower in the campaign.

The other appointees are Republicans.

"Unity" Theme Recalled

Talbott, in a statement after his designation was announced, recalled the "Unity" theme of the Eisenhower campaign by declaring he would "give full co-operation to the other branches of our armed forces."

The announcement today virtually completed the filling of major posts in the Eisenhower administration. All of today's appointments, like those to Cabinet posts, are subject to Senate confirmation.

Kyes (whose name rhymes with eyes), is slated to succeed William C. Foster. The others would replace Army Secretary Frank Pace, Navy Secretary Dan A. Kimball and Air Force Secretary Thomas Finletter.

Each of the present office holders sent a telegram of congratulations to his successor and offered help in the shift of authority.

Watermelons May Save His Life

Three-year-old Harry Cook sits up in his hospital bed at Walton, N. Y., to sip watermelon juice flown from Arkansas in an effort to save his life. The boy is gravely ill with nephrosis, a kidney ailment. Seated beside him is Nurse Iva Williford.

Albert Anastasia Vague On Murder At Crime Probe

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP)—Albert Anastasia, the sinister graduate of the old Murder, Inc., era went before the State Crime Commission today but grew very vague whenever homicide was mentioned.

He had been described as the former executioner for the murder-for-profit gang of the 1930s, he man who fingered 50 to 60 New York victims of the gang.

Anastasia Irks Counsel

A swarthy, middle-aged native of Italy, Anastasia seemed relaxed enough during most of his session on the witness stand. He was asked at one point about the murder of a Brooklyn waterfront boss, Emil Camarda. Anastasia leaned forward with a broad smile and asked Commission Counsel Theodore Kiendl:

"Do you know who killed him?"

Irritated, Kiendl snapped back:

"Now are you going to ask me?"

Then the lawyer went on to other questions, most of which Anastasia refused to answer, either for lack of memory or in fear of self incrimination.

Declines To Answer

"Do you know Peter Panto?" Anastasia was asked at one point.

Panto was murdered in 1939 and his body buried in a New Jersey lime stone pit. Sworn testimony has pictured Anastasia as one of his killers. Panto was a longshoreman with a yen to reform the waterfront.

Anastasia blinked at the question but seemed quite calm. He scratched his chin, thought it over for a few moments, then cooly declined to answer.

Anastasia was by far the most sinister witness yet before the crime commission in its investigation of New York's waterfront.

Separated Twins Clinging To Life

CHICAGO, Dec. 19 (AP)—The now separated Brodie Siamese twins clung tenaciously to life today despite "continuous complications" confronting specialists striving to pull them through the crisis.

A spokesman at the University of Illinois said doctors on the case are meeting with "continuing complications requiring constant attention." But, he added, "none are unexpected in cases of this kind."

The university's medical center, meanwhile, issued a bulletin saying there had been little change in the case of 15 months old Rodney Dee and Roger Lee Brodie since Thursday afternoon, and that Roger remains "very precarious.'

Roger is the twin deprived of the single main brain drainage vein when surgeons decided to give it to Rodney, the twin found "most biologically fit."

The twins, joined extensively at the tops of their heads, were separated in an historic 12 hour and 40 minute operation Wednesday.

Fire Put Out On Big Plane Carrying 148

SUNNYVALE, Calif., Dec. 19 (AP)—A giant Navy Constitution plane, carrying 130 passengers and a crew of 18, landed safely at Moffett Field today after one of its four engines caught fire over Fresno.

The huge double-deck plane flew from San Diego.

The pilot, Navy Lt. J. R. Rader, said his No. 3 engine—inboard on the right wing—became engulfed in flames but that the blaze was extinguished in a few minutes and the plane "operating under normal conditions."

Collins Heads Home

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 19 (AP) — Gen. J. Lawton Collins, U. S. Army Chief of Staff, left by plane tonight for New York after lunching with Portugal's top military leaders.

U. N. Spurns Soviet Bloc's Proposed Membership Deal

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP)—The U. N. tonight rejected a Soviet bloc attempt to give membership to five Communist allies in a package deal along with nine other countries favored by the West.

The General Assembly's Special Political Committee, at a late night session, voted down the package proposal introduced by Poland by a vote of 20 to 28, with 11 abstentions.

The committee, however, agreed to ask the Security Council to grant membership to Libya and Jordan—two of the countries listed in the Polish package deal—and to Japan and the French-sponsored Indochina states of Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos. The Soviet bloc voted against these separate proposals.

Cost of Living Equals Record

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) — The government reported today that the cost of living edged up in November to equal the record high of last August.

The increase was insufficient, however, to prevent the nation's 1¼ million railroad workers from taking a penny an hour pay cut under the escalator clause in their wage contracts.

The index prepared by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed that between mid-October and mid-November there was little change in the cost of foods and many other essentials items. An increase in rents was in part responsible for the over-all increase for the month, which was recorded as one-tenth of 1 per cent.

The index reached 191.1 per cent of the average for the 1935-39 period. This means that it now costs 91.1 cents more to buy what a dollar bill would purchase in the 1935-39 era.

The new index is 1.3 per cent above November a year ago, and 12.3 per cent higher than just before the Korean War began.

Owen Lattimore Pleads Innocent To Lying Charge

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) — Owen Lattimore was arraigned on a seven-count perjury charge today and almost shouted "Not guilty."

The Far Eastern specialist, accused by a congressional committee of being a champion of Communist causes, was released under a $2,000 bond by U. S. District Judge James R. Kirkland.

"You may go anywhere in the world, but be back on the date of the trial," Judge Kirkland told him. The court said the trial probably would begin in March.

Accused Of Lying Seven Times

Lattimore is charged with testifying falsely in seven instances when he appeared before the Senate's internal security subcommittee last winter. Congress has been investigating Lattimore's activities off and on for the last three years.

In an indictment returned last Tuesday he was accused, among other things, of swearing falsely that he had never been "a sympathizer and promoter of communism and Communist interests."

Lattimore spoke only the two words "not guilty" before the bench. He left the rest of the talking to his attorney, Thurman Arnold, a former assistant attorney general and former judge of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Denies McCarthy's Charges

Lattimore is director of a school of international relations at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. During his career he served as consultant to the State Department on Far Eastern affairs and as advisor to Chiang Kai-shek, generalisimo of the Nationalist Chinese forces.

Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) has accused Lattimore of being the top Soviet espionage agent in the United States and also has said he was the chief architect of American policy in the Far East after World War II—a policy which many critics say lost China to the Reds.

Lattimore has made a blanket denial of these charges.

Was He Surprised!

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Dec. 19 (AP)—Sixten Pedersen, a carpenter, lit a cigarette last night and wound up in the hospital with a pair of split lips. Turned out it wasn't a cigarette but a firecracker left over from a party.

Heinz And Rooney Targets Of Girls' Extortion Attempt

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19 (AP)—Fred Hallford, special agent in charge of the Pittsburgh FBI office here, tonight announced the arrest of two teen-aged Pittsburgh girls he said admitted trying to extort $30,000 from H. J. Heinz II, president of the H. J. Heinz Co., and Arthur J. Rooney, owner of the National Football League's Pittsburgh Steelers.

The girls were not identified. One is 15, the other 14.

The 15-year-old girl was charged with violating a federal extortion statute in that she directed a letter through the mails on Aug. 9, 1952, to Rooney.

The letter, Hallford said, threatened the life of Rooney's 13-year old twin sons unless he paid $10,000.

The 15-year-old girl, along with her 14-year old friend, were charged with sending another letter to Heinz last Oct. 26, "threatening the life of his son unless a payment of $20,000 was made by Heinz."

Hallford said 10 threatening letters were sent to Heinz, "all reiterating a demand for the payment of $20,000, the last letter being directed to Heinz on Dec. 13."

Maragon Released From Reformatory

PETERSBURG, Va., Dec. 19 (AP) — John Maragon, ex-Kansas City bootblack who went to jail for lying to a Senate sub-committee, got out of the federal reformatory here today.

Maragon, now 59, served 156 days less than the maximum of the eight to 24-month sentence imposed on him in May, 1950. He was whisked away to his McLean, Va., home by his wife and son, who met him in an automobile.

The jaunty Greek-American was jailed for lying to a Senate subcommittee investigating influence peddlers and "five-percenters." He went to jail in spite of his attorney's insistence that Maragon was "only a scapegoat."

Second Man Reported Held In Brink's Holdup

Affidavits Said To Name Bandit

BOSTON, Dec. 19, (AP)—A second man has been tabbed as a participant in the huge $1,219,000 Brink's holdup and is reportedly in the custody of the FBI, it was reported tonight.

U. S. Atty. George F. Garrity had no comment.

These latest reports were that affidavits named a second man as having been one of the hooded gunmen who tied up five employes in the armored car firm's vaults on Jan. 17, 1950, and made off with the largest cash haul in America.

The man, unidentified, was described as 37 years old with a bad police record. He was said to be in the hands of the Federal Bureau of Investigation but not necessarily in a penal institution.

Suspect Might "Talk"

The inference was drawn that this man might "talk."

This information, learned by Federal Building reporters, was said to be based on FBI affidavits no longer available. The affidavits purportedly said the man at one time had in his possession approximately $60,000 of Brink's money.

Since sworn affidavits became available Thursday night naming Joseph "Spec" O'Keefe, 44, of Boston, as a participant in the robbery, all papers having any connection with the robbery have been removed from files and hidden.

It also was reported in the Federal Building, where a grand jury is investigating the stickup, that FBI agents may have cracked an alibi of "Specs" O'Keefe, who has been cited by the jury for contempt in refusing to answer questions.

Two More Witnesses Cited

The night of the robbery, O'Keefe has told police, he was drinking with a woman companion in an uptown hotel between 7 and 7:30 p. m. The robbery occurred about 7:10.

These reports about O'Keefe's alibi were shrugged off without comment by federal officials.

Two more reluctant witnesses were cited today on contempt charges by the grand jury.

The jury submitted two new names to U. S. Judge William T. McCarthy, bringing to 11 the total of close-mouthed witnesses so far charged.

The latest named were Thomas F. Richardson, a longshoreman, and Vincent Costa, a furniture mover.

U. N. Committee Backs Austrian Treaty Appeal

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP)—An earnest appeal to the Big Four to make new and urgent attempts to conclude an Austrian independence treaty was approved today by 48 of the U. N. Political Committee's 60 members.

The General Assembly, speeding its work in a determined effort to recess by Sunday, is expected to approve the appeal with little debate. This would throw the moral weight of the U. N. behind the plea, but its backers gloomily admit it will have little result in view of the stubborn refusal of the Soviet Union to agree on a treaty.

Reds Refuse To Participate

The Russians, blamed by many delegates for blocking the treaty, curtly announced they were not participating in the roll-call vote. Their four Communist satellites echoed that declaration. Pakistan and Afghanistan abstained. Delegates of five countries, El Salvador, Iceland, Lebanon—which was a sponsor of the appeal—Saudi Arabia and Yemen were absent.

Austrian Foreign Minister Karl Gruber hailed the result as a "very great achievement."

"We are very glad to have this vote here," he said. "It will help tremendously to boost morale in our country."

Gruber Hopes For Big 4 Talks

Gruber told reporters yesterday Austria would not make a separate peace with the United States, Britain and France because Austrians want to keep their country united. He said today the U. N. appeal might serve as a starting point for new talks by the Big Four.

The resolution approved by the committee was sponsored by Brazil, Mexico and The Netherlands as well as Lebanon. It recalled that the United States, Russia and Britain agreed in the Moscow declaration of Nov. 1, 1943, that Austria should be re-established as a free and independent state. It recalled that France joined that declaration later, but that troops of those four countries still occupy Austria in the absence of a treaty.

Waterfront Boss Given 18 Months

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) — Edward J. Florio, longshore boss, drew an 18 month sentence for perjury after suddenly switching his plea to guilty and throwing himself on the court's mercy while the jury that heard his case was still out.

The 57-year-old union organizer from New Jersey, accused of giving false testimony in New York's investigation of waterfront racketeering, came here to stand trial because his lawyer said he couldn't get an unbiased jury in the "hostile atmosphere" of the New York probe.

His change of plea from innocent to guilty came after about an hour of deliberation by the jury of Washingtonians, and after a conference with his lawyers. It was an unprecedented denouncement, as far as veteran courtroom observers here could recall.

Florio, an organizer for the AFL International Longshoremen's Association, was accused of lying when he told a New York grand jury that he had not received two checks for $1,000 each from the president of a stevedoring firm.

Florio testified yesterday he subsequently discovered he had "made a mistake" and went before the grand jury a second time to correct the record.

Navy Unveils New Submarine Killer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) — The Navy announced tonight a new hunter and killer of submarines has taken the air.

An initial flight has been made by the twin-engine Grumman S2F1, the first carrier aircraft combining features for submarine search and attack in one aircraft, the Navy said.

Heretofore hunter-killer teams of two planes each have been used for this work.

The new propeller-driven aircraft carries a crew of four and is one of the heaviest to operate from a carrier. Its speed, range and other performance capabilities are secret.

Bandits Get $3,800

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) — Three bandits held up the M. Cain Excavating Co. office today and escaped with a $3,800 payroll.

Police said the bandits, all Negroes, bound Leo F. Stock Jr., vice president, and Paul Davis, secretary of the firm, gathered up the money in 55 pay envelopes and fled.

Ridgway Blasts NATO Ministers For Defense Cut

PARIS, Dec. 19 (AP)—The North Atlantic ministers' decision to slow the Western European defense buildup drew fire today from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, whose advice they ignored.

Obviously irked, the supreme Allied commander declared "there can be no excuse for any slackening of effort in the rapid building of NATO defenses" in the face of a continuing threat of war.

Ridgway deplored economy moves of the North Atlantic Council in a talk before 53 Army, Navy and Air Force officers making up the second graduating class of the NATO Defense College, which trains men for work in his headquarters and its sub-commands.

War Threat Continues

"We do not know how long we shall be the Kremlin's target, marked for attack by war. . . at a time of its own choosing," the American general said.

Foreign, finance and defense ministers of the 14 member nations wound up a four-day meeting here yesterday. The council cut in half the U. S.-supported call by Ridgway for 428 million dollars to build more air bases and other installations in 1953 and decided to flesh out instead of otherwise boosting the size of his military forces.

Ths was called an emphasis on "quality rather than quantity," as British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden remarked in London today in commenting on Ridgway's speech. Eden said the Allies—their economies already strained by defense efforts—did the right thing. He said the emphasis applied particularly to training and weapons.

800 Million Backlog

"It is a very expensive business indeed," Eden said.

The chairman of NATO's Building Committee, Danish Finance Minister Thorkil Kristensen, said last night that one reason for the cut was the fact a backlog of almost 800 million dollars previously authorized for air fields, naval works and other defense installations remains to be spent.

Ridgway waited less than 24 hours after the ministers wound up their meeting to deplore its outcome. He said the decisions showed "unimaginative thought."

TV Beer-Drinking Ban

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 19 (AP) — Television commercials showing announcers drinking beer were banned today by WFBM-TV in response to a protest from Methodist ministers.

Sens. Bridges, Knowland Bow Out Of Contest

Floor Leadership Now One-Man Race

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP)—Sen. Taft of Ohio virtually clinched the post of Republican floor leader in the new Senate today, as possible rivals stepped aside.

Thus a post of tremendous power in Congress will go to a man who fought President-elect Eisenhower bitterly for the Republican presidential nomination. The success of the Eisenhower legislative program could depend in no small measure, on how well the two men can co-operate.

The Senate majority floor leader traditionally takes part in White House councils and leads the fight in the Senate for the administration proposals. Taft has expressed confidence he can work in co-operation with the Eisenhower administration, despite past differences. And Eisenhower lieutenants had passed the word they had no objection to him as a majority leader.

Bridges, Knowland, Bow Out

Doubt as to who would capture the prize faded away today with an announcement by Taft that (1) he was a candidate for the job and (2) that he had assurances from Sen. Bridges (R-NH) and Knowland (R-Calif) that they were not seeking it.

This left Taft with no known rivals for the post, and Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) promptly said it looked as though Taft would be chosen unanimously by Republican senators before the new Congress meets Jan. 3.

At his home in Oakland, Calif., Knowland said that "in the interests of having a united Republican party, I am not going to be a candidate for floor leader." He previously had said he was a candidate unless Bridges wished to continue in the post.

Bridges Averted Clash

Bridges, senior to all Republicans in Senate service, took the job last year to avert a clash between supporters of Taft and Eisenhower for the presidential nomination.

Bridges has said all along, however, that he did not wish to keep the floor leadership, that he would be willing to do so only if necessary to prevent a "rough and tumble" party fight.

His preference, he said, was to be chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and temporary president of the Senate—a post in which he would preside over the Senate in the absence of the vice president.

Pentagon Admits Ammo Rationed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19. (AP) — Maj Gen. William O. Reeder said today that when President-elect Eisenhower spoke about "certain problems of supply" that need correcting in Korea, he doubtless was talking about ammunition.

Eisenhower said Dec. 14 in a report on his Korean visit that these problems "have reached rather serious proportions." He didn't specify what they were.

The point came up today at a Pentagon news conference dealing with accumulation and use of military supplies.

Gen. Reeder, who is deputy assistant chief of staff of G-4 (logistics), said there had been rationing of ammunition in Korea and there still is in some types.

He added that Eisenhower probably listened to persons "who would like to have all the ammunition they could lay their hands on." He replied with a sharp "no" when asked whether he meant to imply that Eisenhower was mistaken or made a wrong appraisal.

Verdict In Packages-Of-20 Piracy Trial Is Due Today

TANGIER, International Zone, Morocco, Dec. 19 (AP)—A verdict is due tomorrow in the packages-of-20 piracy trial of Sidney H. Paley, a Barbary Coast nylon manufacturer from Jersey City, N. J., who professes violent seasickness in the calmest seas.

Paley, 32, is accused of conspiring with and helping a fugitive New York adventurer, Elliot Burt Forrest, in the high seas hijacking of $100,000 worth of American cigarets from the 300-ton Dutch motorship Combinatie Oct. 4. He denies it.

A United States Consular Court headed by Consular Judge Milton Helmick received the final arguments and began deliberations today in this first postwar piracy case on the Barbary Coast—historic stamping ground of maritime brigands.

The hearing has bared details of a profitable cigaret trade out of Tangier in which Paley and Forrest took part. The cargo is exchanged at sea, outside the legal jurisdiction of any nation, and then finds its way past coastal police to booming black markets in France, Spain and Italy. Millions of dollars change hands each month.

The attack on the Combinatie was carried out by armed crewmen of the motorship Esne 16 miles off the east coast of Spain. Paley testified yesterday he had chartered the Esme, owned by Rue Wright of Colorado City, Tex., but that Forrest commanded her at sea.

Red Troop Area Hit By Allied Warplanes

SEOUL, Saturday, Dec. 20 (AP)—Allied fighter-bombers blew a Communist troop area into a pile of smouldering lumber Friday in an unrelenting campaign to destroy rear barracks and supplies in the dead of the Korean winter.

U. S. Sabre jets swept MIG Alley deep in North Korea, damaging one MIG jet in a dogfight between four Sabres and four MIGs.

A flurry of light Communist probes—none larger than squad size—hit the Punchbowl area on the Eastern Front, about 25 miles north of Kaesong in Western Korea.

Separated Twins Clinging To Life

CHICAGO, Dec. 19 (AP)—The now separated Brodie Siamese twins clung tenaciously to life today despite "continuous complications" confronting specialists striving to pull them through the crisis.

A spokesman at the University of Illinois said doctors on the case are meeting with "continuing complications requiring constant attention." But, he added, "none are unexpected in cases of this kind."

The university's medical center, meanwhile, issued a bulletin saying there had been little change in the case of 15 months old Rodney Dee and Roger Lee Brodie since Thursday afternoon, and that Roger remains "very precarious.'

Roger is the twin deprived of the single main brain drainage vein when surgeons decided to give it to Rodney, the twin found "most biologically fit."

The twins, joined extensively at the tops of their heads, were separated in an historic 12 hour and 40 minute operation Wednesday.

Fire Put Out On Big Plane Carrying 148

SUNNYVALE, Calif., Dec. 19 (AP) —A giant Navy Constitution plane, carrying 130 passengers and a crew of 18, landed safely at Moffett Field today after one of its four engines caught fire over Fresno.

The huge double-deck plane flew from San Diego.

The pilot, Navy Lt. J. R. Rader, said his No. 3 engine—inboard on the right wing—became engulfed in flames but that the blaze was extinguished in a few minutes and the plane "operating under normal conditions."

Heinz And Rooney Targets Of Girls' Extortion Attempt

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19 (AP)—Fred Hallford, special agent in charge of the Pittsburgh FBI office here, tonight announced the arrest of two teen-aged Pittsburgh girls he said admitted trying to extort $30,000 from H. J. Heinz II, president of the H. J. Heinz Co., and Arthur J. Rooney, owner of the National Football League's Pittsburgh Steelers.

The girls were not identified. One is 15, the other 14.

The 15-year-old girl was charged with violating a federal extortion statute in that she directed a letter through the mails on Aug. 9, 1952, to Rooney.

The letter, Hallford said, threatened the life of Rooney's 13-year old twin sons unless he paid $10,000.

The 15-year-old girl, along with her 14-year old friend, were charged with sending another letter to Heinz last Oct. 26, "threatening the life of his son unless a payment of $20,000 was made by Heinz."

Hallford said 10 threatening letters were sent to Heinz, "all reiterating a demand for the payment of $20,000, the last letter being directed to Heinz on Dec. 13."

Second Man Reported Held In Brink's Holdup

Affidavits Said To Name Bandit

BOSTON, Dec. 19, (AP)—A second man has been tabbed as a participant in the huge $1,219,000 Brink's holdup and is reportedly in the custody of the FBI, it was reported tonight.

U. S. Atty. George F. Garrity had no comment.

These latest reports were that affidavits named a second man as having been one of the hooded gunmen who tied up five employes in the armored car firm's vaults on Jan. 17, 1950, and made off with the largest cash haul in America.

The man, unidentified, was described as 37 years old with a bad police record. He was said to be in the hands of the Federal Bureau of Investigation but not necessarily in a penal institution.

Suspect Might "Talk"

The inference was drawn that this man might "talk."

This information, learned by Federal Building reporters, was said to be based on FBI affidavits no longer available. The affidavits purportedly said the man at one time had in his possession approximately $60,000 of Brink's money.

Since sworn affidavits became available Thursday night naming Joseph "Spec" O'Keefe, 44, of Boston, as a participant in the robbery, all papers having any connection with the robbery have been removed from files and hidden.

It also was reported in the Federal Building, where a grand jury is investigating the stickup, that FBI agents may have cracked an alibi of "Specs" O'Keefe, who has been cited by the jury for contempt in refusing to answer questions.

Two More Witnesses Cited

The night of the robbery, O'Keefe has told police, he was drinking with a woman companion in an uptown hotel between 7 and 7:30 p. m. The robbery occurred about 7:10.

These reports about O'Keefe's alibi were shrugged off without comment by federal officials.

Two more reluctant witnesses were cited today on contempt charges by the grand jury.

The jury submitted two new names to U. S. Judge William T. McCarthy, bringing to 11 the total of close-mouthed witnesses so far charged.

The latest named were Thomas F. Richardson, a longshoreman, and Vincent Conta, a furniture mover.

U. N. Committee Backs Austrian Treaty Appeal

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., Dec. 19 (AP)—An earnest appeal to the Big Four to make new and urgent attempts to conclude an Austrian independence treaty was approved today by 48 of the U. N. Political Committee's 60 members.

The General Assembly, speeding its work in a determined effort to recess by Sunday, is expected to approve the appeal with little debate. This would throw the moral weight of the U. N. behind the plea, but its backers gloomily admit it will have little result in view of the stubborn refusal of the Soviet Union to agree on a treaty.

Reds Refuse To Participate

The Russians, blamed by many delegates for blocking the treaty, curtly announced they were not participating in the roll-call vote. Their four Communist satellites echoed that declaration. Pakistan and Afghanistan abstained. Delegates of five countries, El Salvador, Iceland, Lebanon—which was a sponsor of the appeal—Saudi Arabia and Yemen were absent.

Austrian Foreign Minister Karl Gruber hailed the result as a "very great achievement."

"We are very glad to have this vote here," he said. "It will help tremendously to boost morale in our country."

Gruber Hopes For Big 4 Talks

Gruber told reporters yesterday Austria would not make a separate peace with the United States, Britain and France because Austrians want to keep their country united. He said today the U. N. appeal might serve as a starting point for new talks by the Big Four.

The resolution approved by the committee was sponsored by Brazil, Mexico and The Netherlands as well as Lebanon. It recalled that the United States, Russia and Britain agreed in the Moscow declaration of Nov. 1, 1943, that Austria should be re-established as a free and independent state. It recalled that France joined that declaration later, but that troops of those four countries still occupy Austria in the absence of a treaty.

Waterfront Boss Given 18 Months

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) — Edward J. Florio, longshore boss, drew an 18 month sentence for perjury after suddenly switching his plea to guilty and throwing himself on the court's mercy while the jury that heard his case was still out.

The 57-year-old union organizer from New Jersey, accused of giving false testimony in New York's investigation of waterfront racketeering, came here to stand trial because his lawyer said he couldn't get an unbiased jury in the "hostile atmosphere" of the New York probe.

His change of plea from innocent to guilty came after about an hour of deliberation by the jury of Washingtonians, and after a conference with his lawyers. It was an unprecedented denouncement, as far as veteran courtroom observers here could recall.

Florio, an organizer for the AFL International Longshoremen's Association, was accused of lying when he told a New York grand jury that he had not received two checks for $1,000 each from the president of a stevedoring firm.

Florio testified yesterday he subsequently discovered he had "made a mistake" and went before the grand jury a second time to correct the record.

Navy Unveils New Submarine Killer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) — The Navy announced tonight a new hunter and killer of submarines has taken the air.

An initial flight has been made by the twin-engine Grumman S2F1, the first carrier aircraft combining features for submarine search and attack in one aircraft, the Navy said.

Heretofore hunter-killer teams of two planes each have been used for this work.

The new propeller-driven aircraft carries a crew of four and is one of the heaviest to operate from a carrier. Its speed, range and other performance capabilities are secret.

Bandits Get $3,800

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) — Three bandits held up the M. Cain Excavating Co. office today and escaped with a $3,800 payroll.

Police said the bandits, all Negroes, bound Leo F. Stock Jr., vice president, and Paul Davis, secretary of the firm, gathered up the money in 55 pay envelopes and fled.

Ridgway Blasts NATO Ministers For Defense Cut

PARIS, Dec. 19 (AP)—The North Atlantic ministers' decision to slow the Western European defense buildup drew fire today from Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, whose advice they ignored.

Obviously irked, the supreme Allied commander declared "there can be no excuse for any slackening of effort in the rapid building of NATO defenses" in the face of a continuing threat of war.

Ridgway deplored economy moves of the North Atlantic Council in a talk before 53 Army, Navy and Air Force officers making up the second graduating class of the NATO Defense College, which trains men for work in his headquarters and its sub-commands.

War Threat Continues

"We do not know how long we shall be the Kremlin's target, marked for attack by war. . . at a time of its own choosing," the American general said.

Foreign, finance and defense ministers of the 14 member nations wound up a four-day meeting here yesterday. The council cut in half the U. S.-supported call by Ridgway for 428 million dollars to build more air bases and other installations in 1953 and decided to flesh out instead of otherwise boosting the size of his military forces.

Ths was called an emphasis on "quality rather than quantity," as British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden remarked in London today in commenting on Ridgway's speech. Eden said the Allies—their economies already strained by defense efforts—did the right thing. He said the emphasis applied particularly to training and weapons.

800 Million Backlog

"It is a very expensive business indeed," Eden said.

The chairman of NATO's Building Committee, Danish Finance Minister Thorkil Kristensen, said last night that one reason for the cut was the fact a backlog of almost 800 million dollars previously authorized for air fields, naval works and other defense installations remains to be spent.

Ridgway waited less than 24 hours after the ministers wound up their meeting to deplore its outcome. He said the decisions showed "unimaginative thought."

Verdict In Packages-Of-20 Piracy Trial Is Due Today

TANGIER, International Zone, Morocco, Dec. 19 (AP)—A verdict is due tomorrow in the packages-of-20 piracy trial of Sidney H. Paley, a Barbary Coast nylon manufacturer from Jersey City, N. J., who professes violent seasickness in the calmest seas.

Paley, 32, is accused of conspiring with and helping a fugitive New York adventurer, Elliot Burt Forrest, in the high seas hijacking of $100,000 worth of American cigarets from the 300-ton Dutch motorship Combinatie Oct. 4. He denies it.

A United States Consular Court headed by Consular Judge Milton Helmick received the final arguments and began deliberations today in this first postwar piracy case on the Barbary Coast—historic stamping ground of maritime brigands.

The hearing has bared details of a profitable cigaret trade out of Tangier in which Paley and Forrest took part. The cargo is exchanged at sea, outside the legal jurisdiction of any nation, and then finds its way past coastal police to booming black markets in France, Spain and Italy. Millions of dollars change hands each month.

The attack on the Combinatie was carried out by armed crewmen of the motorship Esmee 16 miles off the east coast of Spain. Paley testified yesterday he had chartered the Esme, owned by Rue Wright of Colorado City, Tex., but that Forrest commanded her at sea.

Sens. Bridges, Knowland Bow Out Of Contest

Floor Leadership Now One-Man Race

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP)—Sen. Taft of Ohio virtually clinched the post of Republican floor leader in the new Senate today, as possible rivals stepped aside.

Thus a post of tremendous power in Congress will go to a man who fought President-elect Eisenhower bitterly for the Republican presidential nomination. The success of the Eisenhower legislative program could depend in no small measure, on how well the two men can co-operate.

The Senate majority floor leader traditionally takes part in White House councils and leads the fight in the Senate for the administration proposals. Taft has expressed confidence he can work in co-operation with the Eisenhower administration, despite past differences. And Eisenhower lieutenants had passed the word they had no objection to him as a majority leader.

Bridges, Knowland, Bow Out

Doubt as to who would capture the prize faded away today with an announcement by Taft that (1) he was a candidate for the job and (2) that he had assurances from Sen. Bridges (R-NH) and Knowland (R-Calif) that they were not seeking it.

This left Taft with no known rivals for the post, and Sen. Watkins (R-Utah) promptly said it looked as though Taft would be chosen unanimously by Republican senators before the new Congress meets Jan. 3.

At his home in Oakland, Calif., Knowland said that "in the interests of having a united Republican party, I am not going to be a candidate for floor leader." He previously had said he was a candidate unless Bridges wished to continue in the post.

Bridges Averted Clash

Bridges, senior to all Republicans in Senate service, took the job last year to avert a clash between supporters of Taft and Eisenhower for the presidential nomination.

Bridges has said all along, however, that he did not wish to keep the floor leadership, that he would be willing to do so only if necessary to prevent a "rough and tumble" party fight.

His preference, he said, was to be chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee and temporary president of the Senate—a post in which he would preside over the Senate in the absence of the vice president.

Pentagon Admits Ammo Rationed

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19. (AP) — Maj Gen. William O. Reeder said today that when President - elect Eisenhower spoke about "certain problems of supply" that need correcting in Korea, he doubtless was talking about ammunition.

Eisenhower said Dec. 14 in a report on his Korean visit that these problems "have reached rather serious proportions." He didn't specify what they were.

The point came up today at a Pentagon news conference dealing with accumulation and use of military supplies.

Gen. Reeder, who is deputy assistant chief of staff of G-4 (logistics), said there had been rationing of ammunition in Korea and there still is in some types.

He added that Eisenhower probably listened to persons "who would like to have all the ammunition they could lay their hands on." He replied with a sharp "no" when asked whether he meant to imply that Eisenhower was mistaken or made a wrong appraisal.

Red Troop Area Hit By Allied Warplanes

SEOUL, Saturday, Dec. 20 (AP)—Allied fighter-bombers blew a Communist troop area into a pile of smouldering lumber Friday in an unrelenting campaign to destroy rear barracks and supplies in the dead of the Korean winter.

U. S. Sabre jets swept MIG Alley deep in North Korea, damaging one MIG jet in a dogfight between four Sabres and four MIGs.

A flurry of light Communist probes—none larger than squad size—hit the Punchbowl area on the Eastern Front, about 25 miles north of Kaesong in Western Korea.

Truman Assails Soviet Campaign Of 'Vilification'

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19. (AP) — President Truman today accused Soviet Russia of using the United States as a target for "the most shameless, cynical and terrible campaign of villification ever conducted against an entire people anywhere."

Addressing the National War College, Truman declared Soviet leaders now apparently realize "they can gain nothing from war but catastrophe" and have turned to a policy of trying to drive a wedge between this country and its allies.

"We must meet this present phase of the Communist challenge, as we have met others in the past," the President said. "We must make a real effort to overcome the things that tend to divide us from our friends and allies.

"If this is done—if we are able to preserve unity and confidence among the free nations—we need not be panicky today about the state of the world.

"We are not on the losing side. The world is not about to collapse around us."

As he has on past occasions, Truman showed himself keenly conscious about the role he will be alloted in history. Staunchily defending the foreign policies he has pursued during his seven-year regime in the White House, the President said future historians may recognize "some mistakes," but he declared:

"On balance, I believe they will say that never in history did a great nation respond so effectively and promptly to new and unaccustomed problems as did this nation in the past seven years."

"Saucers" May Be "Spots Before Eyes"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) — Flying saucers may be only "spots before the eyes" that all of us can have — especially folks with upset stomachs or migraine headaches — a Los Angeles doctor said today.

Dr. Edgar F. Mauer said the oft-reported discs which have made some folks wonder about visitors from outer space may well be "muscae volitantes" or possibly "scintillating scotoma" — the technical monickers of "spots" before the peepers.

In a communique to the technical magazine "Science," he said muscae volitantes are caused by the shadows cast upon the retina by certain tissue cells of the eye itself.

Russia, U. S. Hit At Red Congress

VIENNA, Dec. 19 (AP)—A former member of the Danish Parliament attacked both the Soviet Union and the United States at the Communist-sponsored world peace congress today.

The speaker was Mrs. Elin Appel, a neutralist who was a member of the anti-Nazi underground in Denmark during the war. She accused the Russians of keeping away from the congress people who are restive under Russian domination, but at the same time she criticized the United States as aggressive both in Korea and in leading the Atlantic bloc of nations.

This address was one of several this w[illegible] in which there has been some criticism of the Soviet Union. Observers here say that neutral persons were deliberately attracted to the congress by the Communists for just such a purpose—to give the congress the appearance of being uncontrolled. Only light applause greeted the speech, and its message soon was lost in the overwhelming welter of pro-Soviet propaganda produced here.

Legislators Oppose Binding Social, Economic Treaties

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19 (AP) — The incoming Republican - controlled Congress is building up steam behind a move to prevent the United States from entering into any binding treaties dealing with human freedoms, or social or economic rights.

Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) told a reporter he sees an imminent danger that American freedoms will be chipped away in treaties now pending before the United Nations.

And incoming congressmen, responding to an Associated Press survey, lined up 172 to 20 in favor of a constitutional amendment along the lines sponsored by Bricker.

Bricker asserted that social and economic rights are internal matters to be governed only by U. S. law — and he wants to write in the Constitution a clear-cut statement that such rights cannot be regulated, limited or defined in any way by international agreements. Opponents of his amendment say it is unnecessary and would hamper international teamwork.

In the survey, senators and representatives throughout the country were asked, "Do you believe the Constitution should be amended along the lines of the Bricker resolution to specify that treaties may never take precedence over rights and guarantees in the Constitution?"

Ninety - seven House members and 28 senators replied with an all-out yes. An additional 41 House members and six senators said they are inclined to agree but want to see the language of the Bricker proposal.

Schools Are Closed After Meningitis Death

LEONARDTOWN, Md., Dec. 19 (AP)—A fatal case of spinal meningitis has been reported in St. Mary's County, and schools were closed early for the Christmas holidays so family doctors could take preventive measures.

There is no actual immunization against the highly contagious disease. But certain drugs, such as sulfa diazene, can be administered as a prophylactic measure, according to the county health officer, Dr. Alan Houser.

Schools would have closed normally at noon today for the holidays. But the county Department of Education closed all of them Thursday.

ENOLA, Ark., Dec. 19 (AP) — The eight members of the John Hilton Bryant family who lost their lives in a kerosene explosion were buried side-by-side in a rain-swept little cemetery near here this afternoon.

Meanwhile, the only survivor of the tragedy last Wednesday, 12-year-old Shirley Bryant, lay fighting for life in a Little Rock hospital, unaware that she faces a bleak Christmas alone in the world.

Shirley, who suffered severe burns over more than half of her body, knows that her six brothers and sisters are dead, but she's still planning to spend Christmas with her mother and father.

"You know," she told her nurse, "there's only daddy and mommie and I left now."

A crowd of about 100 friends and relatives gathered in a steady rain at Siloam Cemetery near this hamlet, birthplace of the father, to pay their last respects to the Bryants.

Buried in adjoining graves were the 29-year-old father, his wife, Mrs. Marie Bryant, 31, and their six children. The specially constructed compartment coffin that bore the bodies of the children was buried between the caskets of their parents.

This morning, a joint funeral service was held for the victims at the Crystal Hill Assembly of God Church. A crowd of some 300 persons, practically the entire population of the Bryants' home community, packed the aisles of the tiny building, and overflowed into the churchyard despite the weather.

Baltimore Negro Held In York Bank Holdup

BALTIMORE, Dec. 19 (AP) — A 22-year-old Baltimore Negro was arrested today and returned to York, Pa., to face charges of robbing a bank there.

The East End branch of the York Trust Company was held up Dec. 9 by three Negroes who escaped with $11,820. They overlooked another $50,000.

The first arrest in the case was Robert Lee McMillan. He was caught by FBI agents, who said he was driving a new car.

Negro Admits He Set Fire In Which 68 Horses Killed

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 19 (AP) — A 24-year-old exercise boy admitted today he deliberately set the $250,000 fire which destroyed 68 racing thoroughbreds at Douglas Park training course Oct. 26, the Fire Department arson squad reported.

Investigators quoted Willie Taylor, a Negro as saying he touched a match to "some hay or straw" in a loft at the former race track near historic Churchill Downs, where the Kentucky Derby is run.

Taylor was charged with arson in a warrant sworn to by Inspector John C. Young of the Fire Department's arson squad.

Taylor's statement said he was "full of" marijuana when he started the blaze which stampeded the valuable horses.

Mudd Reinstates Top Investigator

BALTIMORE, Dec. 19 (AP)—A Department of Motor Vehicles investigator whose boss said he talked out of turn was reinstated, and a potentially stormy hearing into the incident broke up today in a genial exchange of Christmas greetings among all concerned.

Motor Vehicles Commissioner Thomas B. R. Mudd, whose 30-day suspension of Edward Lyden, his chief investigator, had led to criticism and complaints of "censorship," invited Lyden back on the job after six days.

"I have taken cognizance of the time of the year," he said, "and hoped to ask Mr. Lyden to return to duty. He shall be reinstated if he so desires."

Lyden replied he was "exceedingly sorry this happened," and added:

"I want to take this opportunity to wish Mr. Mudd and his family the happiest Christmas they ever had."

A subcommittee of the Legislative Council has asked Mudd to come before it and explain why he had suspended Lyden for describing to newsmen certain abuses by used car dealers of the new temporary automobile license law.

Bob Christenberry Awards Decision To Billy Graham

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP) — Billy Graham of New York was awarded the decision over Joey Giardello of Philadelphia tonight when Chairman Bob Christenberry of the New York State Athletic Commission reversed the original verdict after reviewing the cards of the 10-round main event at Madison Square Garden.

The officials had split on the verdict, giving Giardello the decision, and the small crowd at the televised bout booed the verdict and crowded around the ring howling insults.

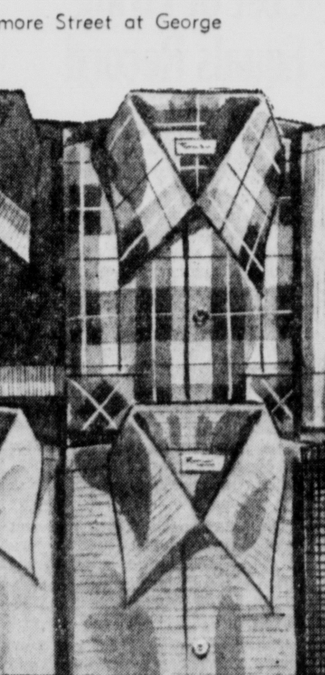

Giardello weighed 151¾, Graham, 149.

Referee Ray Miller gave it to Giardello 5-4-1 and Judge Joe Agnello voted for Giardello 6-4. The other judge, Charley Shortell, had Graham way out front 7-3. The Associated Press card had Graham on top 6-4.

ENOLA, Ark., Dec. 19 (AP) — The eight members of the John Hilton Bryant family who lost their lives in a kerosene explosion were buried side-by-side in a rain-swept little cemetery near here this afternoon.

Meanwhile, the only survivor of the tragedy last Wednesday, 12-year-old Shirley Bryant, lay fighting for life in a Little Rock hospital, unaware that she faces a bleak Christmas alone in the world.

Shirley, who suffered severe burns over more than half of her body, knows that her six brothers and sisters are dead, but she's still planning to spend Christmas with her mother and father.

"You know," she told her nurse, "there's only daddy and mommie and I left now."

A crowd of about 100 friends and relatives gathered in a steady rain at Siloam Cemetery near this hamlet, birthplace of the father, to pay their last respects to the Bryants.

Buried in adjoining graves were the 29-year-old father, his wife, Mrs. Marie Bryant, 31, and their six children. The specially constructed compartment coffin that bore the bodies of the children was buried between the caskets of their parents.

This morning, a joint funeral service was held for the victims at the Crystal Hill Assembly of God Church. A crowd of some 300 persons, practically the entire population of the Bryants' home community, packed the aisles of the tiny building, and overflowed into the churchyard despite the weather.

Baltimore Negro Held In York Bank Holdup

BALTIMORE, Dec. 19 (AP) — A 22-year-old Baltimore Negro was arrested today and returned to York, Pa., to face charges of robbing a bank there.

The East End branch of the York Trust Company was held up Dec. 9 by three Negroes who escaped with $11,820. They overlooked another $50,000.

The first arrest in the case was Robert Lee McMillan. He was caught by FBI agents, who said he was driving a new car.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19 (INS)—Miss Irene Albert, 37-year-old Beverly Hills and San Francisco socialite, today termed ridiculous federal accusations that she took part in Nazi propaganda broadcasts during World War Two.

The blonde daughter of a fabulously wealthy bay area family was arrested yesterday at the Palm Springs home of her mother, Mrs. Florence Whittel Albert, brought to Los Angeles and freed on $5,000 bail.

Negro Admits He Set Fire In Which 68 Horses Killed

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 19 (AP) — A 24-year-old exercise boy admitted today he deliberately set the $250,000 fire which destroyed 68 racing thoroughbreds at Douglas Park training course Oct. 26, the Fire Department arson squad reported.

Investigators quoted Willie Taylor, a Negro as saying he touched a match to "some hay or straw" in a loft at the former race track near historic Churchill Downs, where the Kentucky Derby is run.

Taylor was charged with arson in a warrant sworn to by Inspector John C. Young of the Fire Department's arson squad.

Taylor's statement said he was "full of" marijuana when he started the blaze which stampeded the valuable horses.

Mudd Reinstates Top Investigator

BALTIMORE, Dec. 19 (AP)—A Department of Motor Vehicles investigator whose boss said he talked out of turn was reinstated, and a potentially stormy hearing into the incident broke up today in a genial exchange of Christmas greetings among all concerned.

Motor Vehicles Commissioner Thomas B. R. Mudd, whose 30-day suspension of Edward Lyden, his chief investigator, had led to criticism and complaints of "censorship," invited Lyden back on the job after six days.

"I have taken cognizance of the time of the year," he said, "and hoped to ask Mr. Lyden to return to duty. He shall be reinstated if he so desires."

Lyden replied he was "exceedingly sorry this happened," and added:

"I want to take this opportunity to wish Mr. Mudd and his family the happiest Christmas they ever had."

A subcommittee of the Legislative Council has asked Mudd to come before it and explain why he had suspended Lyden for describing to newsmen certain abuses by used car dealers of the new temporary automobile license law.

Bob Christenberry Awards Decision To Billy Graham

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP) — Billy Graham of New York was awarded the decision over Joey Giardello of Philadelphia tonight when Chairman Bob Christenberry of the New York State Athletic Commission reversed the original verdict after reviewing the cards of the 10-round main event at Madison Square Garden.

The officials had split on the verdict, giving Giardello the decision, and the small crowd at the televised bout booed the verdict and crowded around the ring howling insults.

Giardello weighed 151¾, Graham, 149.

Referee Ray Miller gave it to Giardello 5-4-1 and Judge Joe Agnello voted for Giardello 6-4. The other judge, Charley Shortell, had Graham way out front 7-3. The Associated Press card had Graham on top 6-4.

Price And Wage Controls

What to do about price and wage controls will be one of the matters coming up for early decision by the new administration and the new Congress. Price ceilings already have been suspended on many commodities, and wage controls have been shaken by President Truman's action in overruling the Wage Stabilization Board in the coal case and by the ensuing repercussions. However, the chances are that the controls program will survive long enough to make it the responsibility of the new Republican regime to determine its eventual fate.

Statutory authority to apply price and wage controls will run out on April 30. Senator Capehart (R., Ind.), slated for the chairmanship of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee in the 83rd Congress, has said he hopes the committee can start hearings on renewal not later than February 1. Both Capehart and Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.), prospective chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, opposed continuance of price-wage controls last session. But there are signs that they and other like-minded Republicans, while considering application of the controls unnecessary under present conditions, may deem it wise to extend stand-by power to reimpose them in the event of a new and serious inflationary threat.

Following the Korean outbreak, no effective price-wage controls were put into effect for seven months. Difficulties in staffing the stabilization agencies and indecision over both the seriousness of the emergency and the type of controls needed to cope with it contributed to the delay. By the time prices and wages were frozen, in late January 1951, consumer prices had risen eight per cent and wholesale prices 16 per cent. The controls put a stop to speculative buying and considerably slowed the pace of price inflation. Retail prices continued to inch forward and in August 1952 reached a peak 12 per cent above the pre-Korea level, but by that time wholesale prices had fallen to approximately the same relative level. Average earnings of manufacturing workers in August 1952 were about 15 per cent higher than in June 1950.

Failure to hold wages and retail prices at the levels where they were frozen two years ago was attributable to various factors. Not all goods and services were subjected to price control, and provisions inserted in the Defense Production Act at each successive renewal had the effect of pushing up permitted price ceilings. Progressive liberalization of WSB wage policies, moreover, resulted in rising wage scales.

Meanwhile, however, the stretching out of military programs and expansion of productive facilities relaxed inflationary pressures. Fears of fresh inflation, prompted last summer by a drought and the steel strike, were not borne out. In fact, continued sales of many articles at below-ceiling prices permitted acceleration of the Office of Price Stabilization's program of decontrol, and by the first of December ceilings had been suspended on nearly two-thirds of the items covered by the original freeze order. But there had been no corresponding suspension of wage ceilings. The CIO, though not the AFL, thereupon called for abolition of wage controls.

Recently there has been less discussion of prospects for renewed inflation than of prospects for deflation and a business recession, not in the period immediately ahead, but sometime after defense spending reaches its peak and levels off around the middle of 1953. At the same time, economists assert that the nation's economy is now so delicately balanced that major inflation as well as a major downturn is a possibility.

The uncertainties of the economic and political future seem to be making the Republicans, now that they are about to assume power, less eager than formerly to place sole reliance on monetary and fiscal measures as anti-inflationary weapons. They still may wish to abolish existing price and wage controls. But it begins to look as if they might find it prudent to retain the authority to apply such direct controls as an added weapon in any fight they might have to make against inflation.

Let Christmas Be Gay

Approaches now another anniversary of Christ's birth, which will be celebrated by Americans with a heightened sense of human participation because it is one of the enduring festivals of the human spirit. It is an hour of despair, confusion and conflict, when many feel a sense of guilt or of mockery at the thought of being gay.

But no one proposes to call Christmas off. It is a part of us. We need it more than ever. And perhaps we are more keenly aware of what it means.

Behind Christmas stretch almost 20 centuries of Christianity—a set of beliefs and feelings shared by all men of good will. Christmas can help us to draw strength from Christianity.

The lesson of those 20 centuries is one of courage and hope. Through sorrow and persecution, in meekness and mercy, the followers of the Christian way have triumphed over their conquerors. As long as they never stop believing in something mightier than force, they will triumph again.

The celebrations ahead are a time to renew that faith. Blessed are they that mourn, blessed are the pure in heart, blessed are they that are reviled for being true to the spirit in them. There may be dark days ahead, but Christmas is a time for joy.

Those who are true to the spirit of Christmas need never lack the courage to be merry.

Good Old Budget Time

Early winter around the Pentagon is "budget season," and it is not a particularly happy time for service relationships. News that the proposed $40,000,000,000 military budget for fiscal 1954 contains requests for funds for a third giant aircraft carrier for the Navy, for example, started new rumblings.

Recently Roswell Gilpatric, who is undersecretary of the Air Force, commented rather bitterly in a speech that the military establishment appeared to have four air forces instead of one. But Defense Secretary Lovett retorted it was as unrealistic to say that the Army shouldn't be allowed to have helicopters to evacuate wounded as it was to say that the Air Force should have a few trucks because these are primarily "ground" vehicles.

So much for that, said Mr. Lovett, continuing to stick manfully to his basic premise that there is no inter-service fight brewing in the Pentagon. But evidences of squabbling and nose-thumbing abound, a great deal of it inside the Pentagon, but some in full public view.

Caring For Wounds On The Face

Traumatic tattoos develop when a dirty wound is not cleansed properly and cinders or other foreign materials remain imbedded in the scar. These ugly blemishes are a constant source of irritation, especially when on the face. Removal by surgery is possible and the transformation is likely to be phenomenal.

Cinder marks are noted most frequently in children who have fallen in the school yard or an alley. Mother neglected to scrub the wound with soap and water because she was too timid or the child uncooperative. At any rate, the particles remained and gradually became part of the scar. Similar lesions also occur when oil or other debris is blown into the skin by an explosion. In some instances the problem of cleansing the wound is so extensive and painful that the individual must be anesthetized first. Facial scars are no longer considered signs of heroism or participation in a duel; rather they are a source of embarrassment and annoyance. Occasionally the lesions have a marked psychologic effect, producing an inferiority complex. Furthermore, Hollywood is overcrowded with tough looking extras so the chances are slim of turning the handicap into a fortune.

The majority of facial scars seen today stem from auto accidents. The face is most vulnerable to sudden stops; it continues thru the windshield or flattens itself against the dashboard. The parent who allows a child to stand on the front seat also invites trouble; when the brakes are applied the youngster is bound to fall forward because there is nothing for him to hold. Some car manufacturers recognize these dangers and are incorporating built-in crash pads and recessing the once prominent knobs.

After mishaps of this type all facial scars demand the utmost cleanliness and care if the damage to the skin is to be kept to a minimum. Fine suture material is used and the stitches are removed early. Small wounds may be left uncovered for a day or two to avoid the sticking of bandage material in the wound, thus disrupting the normal process of healing. This is not always possible, however, because the physician must neglect the cosmetic aspects of the face and turn to the more pressing and serious problems at hand. The victim may be in shock or bleeding internally, for example, and these conditions take precedence over a face wound. In such instances the physician usually waits six to 10 weeks before recommending plastic surgery. At this time the entire scar is removed and the surrounding soft, healthy tissue is sutured carefully with tailored precision.

HEART FAILURE

E. L. writes: What is meant by ventricle failure?

REPLY

The ventricles of the heart are so weakened or overstretched they no longer are capable of pumping the normal quota of blood. When the left ventricle fails, the individual develops attacks of shortness of breath or a sense of suffocation. Failure of the right ventricle produces dropsy.

INFLAMED NERVE AND HEART

E. R. writes: Could neuritis lead to heart disease?

REPLY

No; but both neuritis and heart involvement could follow the same cause. An example of this type would be beriberi.

TRAVELING CELLS

Mrs. W. writes: Is endometriosis serious?

REPLY

Not in the majority of cases. But when these traveling endometrial cells cause marked lower abdominal distress, surgery may be needed. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on endometriosis.

CHILDHOOD HEADACHE

R. F. writes: If a person suffers from headaches as a child, will she have them all her life?

REPLY

No. Migraine headache, for example, rarely continues after the menopause even tho it begins early in life.

DURATION OF SHINGLES

Mrs. T. writes: How long does shingles usually last?

REPLY

The lesions usually subside within a few weeks but occasionally, neuralgic pain persists for months or years. This complication is more likely to involve older persons. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope for leaflet on shingles (herpes zoster).

FAILING VISION

Mrs. Z. writes: Can change of life or high blood pressure affect the eyesight? A woman of 58 who has both conditions finds she cannot see as well as before, even with glasses.

REPLY

High blood pressure, but not the change of life, may impair vision. Age itself is a possible factor because in other conditions which affect the older person, glasses are of little if any value. Cataract is an example.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Eisenhower Restrains Hot Retort To Demagoguery Charge; Bridge, Books, Strategy Mix On Helena Cruise; Radford Makes Hit With Ike

WASHINGTON — When President-elect Eisenhower heard what President Truman said about demagoguery and his trip to Korea, he not only hit the ceiling, but sat down and wrote out a statement for the press.

If that statement had been published it would have sizzled round the world. It would have made more headlines than some of the President's own torrid letters and press statements.

Roughly, here is what Eisenhower wrote out in longhand and planned to say:

"If President Truman had gone to Korea it would have been political demagoguery, since Mr. Truman is a politician and doesn't have the military background to assess such a situation."

However, Jim Hagerty, press relations adviser to the President-elect, tactfully talked him out of it. In the end, the statement was labeled: "File and forget."

Pacific Pipeline

Backstage With Ike—Aboard the cruiser Helena, Ike played a lot of bridge and read Western stories when he wasn't conferring. His partner at bridge was Herbert Brownell, the new attorney general and patronage boss; also two subordinate naval officers. At NATO Ike used to play bridge with Gen. Al Gruenther, considered the best bridge player in the Army . . . Golfing at Kaneohe, Hawaii, Ike was completely off his game. That was the reason he refused to give his score to newsmen afterward. Not once did he make the rounds under 100, though he ruefully remarked that at Augusta he had shot 86 and 84 . . . The President-elect didn't seem particularly perturbed by the Korean visit, and there was no specific reason why his game was off . . . Ike golfed in red baseball cap, bright yellow shoes, and pink sports shirt . . . Arriving at Pearl Harbor, General "Slick" Persons looked down at the crowd and remarked: "It's nice to see so many friendly faces without worrying how they'll vote later."

Military Strategy — When MacArthur's announcement that he had a plan to end the Korean War was relayed to Eisenhower aboard the Helena, he was skeptical, but did not want to give the public the impression he wasn't' open to any and all ideas re Korea . . . Some of the people around him were much harsher in their reaction toward MacArthur, called him "childish." . . . At the Seoul military talks, most sobering warning came from the Air Force. Nature of the warnings cannot be revealed for security reasons, but they were such that Eisenhower probably hasn't made up his mind even now regarding future Korean strategy . . . It looks almost certain that Eisenhower will ask the UN to bring two Chinese Nationalist divisions into the Korean War, one to be kept at the front, the other behind the front, and rotated. Gen Mark Clark, who long has wanted to use troops from Formosa, argued that it was a good idea to test the Nationalists under fire.

Navy Ambassador

It looks like fiery, redheaded Adm. Arthur Radford, commander of the U. S. fleet in the Pacific, has talked himself into a potent position with the President-elect.

Most Navy men have been dubious about Eisenhower's attitude toward the Navy, figured that as a lifelong Army man he would favor his own branch of the service.

However, persuasive Admiral Radford, scheduled to see Eisenhower for exactly one hour at Iwo Jima, stayed on for the entire trip. Eisenhower's stop at Iwo was to refuel and to give the President-elect a chance to stretch his legs. There Admiral Radford met him, and at the end of one hour's talk with Radford, Ike came back to his plane and asked the pilot:

"Can't we make room for the admiral?"

So Radford went along. Furthermore, he had such a way with Eisenhower that he persuaded him to revamp his schedule and stop off at Radford's guest house in Hawaii.

The cruise on the Helena had been arranged well before Eisenhower left the U. S. A., but the stopover in Hawaii was not on the schedule. Original plans called for Eisenhower's departure by air from Hawaii immediately after the Helena docked. However, Admiral Radford had so ingratiated himself with the President-elect by this time that arrangements were changed.

Actually, no military strategy was discussed at Hawaii. The President-elect golfed and relaxed. There were no conferences, except for sessions held by Herbert Brownell and Secretary of the Interior-to-be McKay, who interviewed candidates for governor of Hawaii. Two top candidates are Randolph Crossley, chairman of the GOP Territorial Central Committee, and Sam King, former Hawaiian delegate to Congress.

Anti Air Force

Most significant aspect of the Eisenhower-Radford friendship is the effect it may have on the Air Force. Radford was the most controversial of all top-ranking admirals in blasting the B-36 and working against Secretary of Air Stuart Symington and Secretary of Defense Louey Johnson when Johnson banned the Navy's super airplane carrier.

Radford, then in charge of the Navy's air arm, gave directions to "Operation 23," the secret Navy propaganda office working against the Air Force, met privately with Admiral Gerald F. Bogan just before Bogan wrote his famous letter complaining of Navy morale, and was so critical of the Air Force that Congressman Paul Kilday of Texas, listening to Navy gripes, reproved him:

"Admiral, I am disappointed that you did not come here with an affirmative statement of what the Navy can do, instead of a criticism of what the Air Force can do."

Eventually, Admiral Radford was transferred to the Pacific in order to remove him from the Air Force controversy.

But since his Pacific trip with Ike, he may well come back as chief of naval operations—top man in the Navy.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Depression Look

Men are as they think and those who are products of the great depression are likely to think in an atmosphere of fear. They take on a clerk-like disposition whether in government or business, recalling that courage and enterprise and thrift were forced down in the ugly days of the 1930's. Those who risked most, seemed to suffer most.

This, perhaps more than any other cause, produced the lust for security in place of the vision of a self-made career based on initiative and thrift. A few enterprising individuals risked greatly, even in the worst days of the depression, picking up businesses that had collapsed or were on the verge of collapse and building them into mighty enterprises. Other brave souls started new ventures and many of them did well. And some of the older ones were rescued by new management.

But even among these people, the fear of a recurrent depression had the effect of penurious thinking, not so much in the definition of penny-pinching as in the sense of keeping one eye always peeled for the worst that never happened. A people that has not the courage to fail, never reaches Olympian heights of enterprise, because the view is narrowed; the mind is small. The depression attitude expresses itself in all strata of society in the desire for a guaranteed life in the form of government-provided social securities, in pensions, in fringe benefits and similar devices to eliminate risk.

In government circles this has been particularly true and has been responsible, in no small measure, for the fear of Russia, the dependence on Britain, the appeasements in policy and the acceptance of such insults as we take in our stride, for instance, in the United Nations.

We did experience the historic fact that we could win a war and lose it sumultaneously and that frightened our statesmen as much as the depression frightened our generation. If that could happen, anything could happen. Yet, the explanation for it is so simple that it should have been understood; we were courageous in fighting; we were cowardly in negotiation. When we fought, we were old-fashioned Americans; when we negotiated, we lived in the depression-born atmosphere of fear. We thought that we could buy peace by dollars as we gained prosperity by subsidies.

Those who inherited great or even small fortunes were particularly affected by the fear psychology of the depression. They saw their fortunes diminish by the loss in values and the depreciation of currency. They witnessed the effect of taxation, especially inheritance taxes, on the rich. They concluded that there would be no more rich men in America. They hoped to mitigate the force of the revolution.

Many of them joined Roosevelt, not because they believed in him. Actually, in private conversations, they ridiculed him shamelessly. But they did believe that the techniques which he evolved in the New Deal arrested the revolution before which they cringed during the depression years. They believed that he had saved them from the barricades and the guillotine. They put on the masquerade of a hardly understood liberalism, in the hope that when the revolution did come, they would not be taken for reactionaries.

Many men and women of this segment of our society worked their way into the numerous agencies which, since the war years, have been associated with the conduct of our foreign relations and the development of our foreign trade. There was no courage in their hearts. All that they could permit themselves were such ideas as "the containment policy," or the support of socialist parties in Europe, or appeasing the Russians in the hope that they might become good Christians by imitation. They were always afraid because they were conditioned by the depression years to be afraid, to live in fear of the very revolution which they always saw before them as the only future possible for them.

I write not of Republicans or Democrats but of a sick generation that had lost confidence in a way of life that had given them greater benefits, even during the depression, than any other people enjoyed. They were without hope, expecting at best to stop the tide of revolution before it completely engulfed them. They were willing to give up most to save something.

Maybe Eisenhower, through his personality, can revive high courage. Maybe a new generation will now take hold.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

War That Must Be Won

WASHINGTON

A bold new plan for winning the war in Indo-China within two years will almost certainly be adopted when Dwight Eisenhower becomes President and John Foster Dulles his secretary of State. This program involves a basic shift of emphasis in American policy, in Europe as well as Asia. It is based on the belief that the seven-year-old Indo-Chinese war must be won, and won soon, if disaster is to be averted. The new plan may be briefly outlined as follows.

First, France will be asked to send at least two more divisions to Indo-China. The French will certainly be reluctant to strip their own defenses to the extent of two full divisions. But this increase in French manpower in Indo-China is considered the key to a military decision over Ho Chi Minh's Communist armies. And the United States will be ready to offer much in return.

The American government will recognize, as the French have long urged, that Indo-China is not simply a French responsibility, but also the responsibility of the United States, as leader of the free world's resistance to Communist aggression. Accordingly, the United States will agree to increase very heavily American supplies of weapons and equipment, particularly aircraft, for Indo-China.

American factories are beginning now to provide the means for this heavy increase in supplies. But if necessary, supplies will be temporarily diverted from the NATO forces in Western Europe, and from American forces not engaged in Korea, in order to permit the greatest possible build-up in the shortest possible time. American troops will not participate directly in the fighting. But American training and supply groups will be provided to support the French and native Viet Nam anti-Communist forces fighting in Indo-China.

U. S. Warning Likely

As another part of the bargain, the United States will issue a clear warning, designed to forestall open Chinese aggression in Indo-China. This is in line with a proposal made by Dulles in a speech in Paris last May, when he said: "Is it not time that the Chinese Communists knew that if, for example, they send Red armies openly into Viet Nam, we will not be content merely to try to meet their armed forces at the point they select for aggression, but by retaliatory action of our fashioning?"

Finally, the French will be urged to make an unequivocal offer of independence to Indo-China, within a specific time limit. The object of this plan is to break the back of Ho Chi Minh's armies within two years at the most, so that the Communists will be reduced to sporadic guerrilla activity. Well armed native troops, it is reasoned, should be able to handle the guerrillas, provided a political settlement giving Indo-China a staple, independent government has been reached in the meantime. Thus within two years French troops could be returned to France, where they are so desperately needed.

In short, this plan calls for giving the war in Indo-China absolute priority over every other American effort abroad, including the rearmament of Western Europe, and excluding only the Korean War. The reasoning behind the plan is simple. The Indo-Chinese War costs the French more than they receive in aid from this country, and it is destroying the best French regular forces. The French have privately warned American officials in Paris that they cannot possibly carry this burden for more than two years, and perhaps only for one year more.

Test For Administration

The loss of Indo-China would begin a process which would in the end see all Asia in Communist hands. As Dulles also accurately said last May, "Indo-China is the key to Southeast Asia, upon the resources of which Japan largely depends."

While the drain in Indo-China continues, moreover, France will remain weak, and will find ways to prevent Germany from becoming stronger than France. Thus Western strategy which is squarely based on a solid defense of Western Europe, will remain essentially a sham as long as the fighting in Indo-China continues. The only way out of this dilemma is to make a virtual necessity, and give a quick military decision in Indo-Chna priority over the defense of Western Europe itself.

American military experts (like Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, chief of Air Staff, who returned recently from Indo-China) agree with the French commanders on the spot that victory in Indo-China is militarily possible, under some such all-out program as that outlined above. Whether this program is politically possible is another question. It will require the most determined and effective leadership from Eisenhower and Dulles to persuade the American Congress—let alone the French—that the plan is workable and worth the price. Indeed it becomes daily more clear that Asia's twin wars, in Korea and Indo-China, will provide at the very outset a grave test — and a great opportunity—for the new administration.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—This is a tale of tragedy that mothers and fathers of boys who are risking their lives in Korea will not be happy to read—and yet it may be one of the things that will cause the Eisenhower administration to consider seriously the wisdom of a naval blockade to help bring peace in the Far East.

Red China needs rubber for tires to be used on trucks and motors vehicles of all kinds and on airplane wheels. These are essential for war operations against American boys and the soldiers of other United Nations battalions.

Rubber has been embargoed, so Red China can't get it from most of the producing areas of the world.

But Ceylon is now exporting rubber to Red China in ever-increasing quantities. Whereas Red China didn't buy much rubber in 1950, the figures show that it stepped up its purchases from Ceylon in 1951 and now has more than trebled the 1951 purchases.

U. S. Objectives Circumvented

Naturally the American government didn't like it and began making representations about it to Ceylon, which is a British dominion. But since Ceylon isn't a member of the UN, it has refused to shut off its exports of rubber. Red China, moreover, dangled the promise of rice to the Ceylonese. Everybody knows China needs rice for its own people and shouldn't be exporting the commodity at all. But the Ceylonese cabinet on October 17, 1952, approved a barter deal whereby the Ceylon government agreed to sell 22,312 tons of rubber for 80,000 tons of rice—a very attractive deal for the Ceylonese. When a ton of rubber will bring nearly four tons of rice, it is something really alluring to a rice-eating country.

Then the United States Government stepped in an blocked the export of refined sulphur to Ceylon. This article is very vital to the care of rubber trees. The British government objected to American policy and saw to it that the Ceylonese got their sulphur out of the American supply which had been exported to Britain. This tragic circumvention of American objectives is not widely known. The British argued that they were maintaining their normal pattern of exports, but the United States, conceding this point, tried to put direct pressure on Ceylon to stop rubber exports that were aiding the Red Chinese to kill American boys.

Neither Britain nor Malaya sends any rubber to Red China because of the embargo, but the British government has thwarted the American government's efforts to prevent Red China from getting rubber from the only source available to it—Ceylon. Military men are dismayed by the occurrence.

It is thought here that not all the rubber obtained by Red China from Ceylon is going directly to Korea but that some of it is being shipped to Soviet Russia, where most of the weapons and vehicles for the Korean War are manufactured.

Approximately 75,000 tons of rubber are going annually from British colonies to Soviet Russia under an agreement with the United States. So, with a part of the Ceylon quota, the Soviet now is making substantial additions to her armament program in which rubber plays a vital part.

Some Nations Unco-operative

How can the United States put an end to the violations of the spirit as well as the letter of the embargo against the Communist forces in Korea and their suppliers—Soviet Russia? To get from Ceylon, for instance, to the Red China ports, Communist vessels are used. In any other war a blockade would be established to search and seize vessels carrying contraband cargoes. High American officials have refused to impose such a blockade because, as one man phrases it, this would be "an act of war." Yet the Korean operation is bigger than most wars in American history. In fact, the casualties are beginning to compare already with American losses in World War I.

By detaining vessels in the waters of the Indian Ocean and in the South China Sea, our blockading navy could order the ships to turn back to their ports of origin. Blockades are customary in wartime but in the Korean War, while it has become customary to kill and wound tens of thousands of American boys, still some of the governments allied with us, and supposed to share our views against Communist imperialism, are not co-operating.

It's a sad story which the next administration will have to tackle. For the Truman regime, despite revelations of this kind by committees of Congress, has neglected to impose a blockade, which is one of the most effective ways to put economic pressure on Red China and help force a truce.

Price And Wage Controls

What to do about price and wage controls will be one of the matters coming up for early decision by the new administration and the new Congress. Price ceilings already have been suspended on many commodities, and wage controls have been shaken by President Truman's action in overruling the Wage Stabilization Board in the coal case and by the ensuing repercussions. However, the chances are that the controls program will survive long enough to make it the responsibility of the new Republican regime to determine its eventual fate.

Statutory authority to apply price and wage controls will run out on April 30. Senator Capehart (R., Ind.), slated for the chairmanship of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee in the 83rd Congress, has said he hopes the committee can start hearings on renewal not later than February 1. Both Capehart and Representative Wolcott (R., Mich.), prospective chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, opposed continuance of price-wage controls last session. But there are signs that they and other like-minded Republicans, while considering application of the controls unnecessary under present conditions, may deem it wise to extend stand-by power to reimpose them in the event of a new and serious inflationary threat.

Following the Korean outbreak, no effective price-wage controls were put into effect for seven months. Difficulties in staffing the stabilization agencies and indecision over both the seriousness of the emergency and the type of controls needed to cope with it contributed to the delay. By the time prices and wages were frozen, in late January 1951, consumer prices had risen eight per cent and wholesale prices 16 per cent. The controls put a stop to speculative buying and considerably slowed the pace of price inflation. Retail prices continued to inch forward and in August 1952 reached a peak 12 per cent above the pre-Korea level, but by that time wholesale prices had fallen to approximately the same relative level. Average earnings of manufacturing workers in August 1952 were about 15 per cent higher than in June 1950.

Failure to hold wages and retail prices at the levels where they were frozen two years ago was attributable to various factors. Not all goods and services were subjected to price control, and provisions inserted in the Defense Production Act at each successive renewal had the effect of pushing up permitted price ceilings. Progressive liberalization of WSB wage policies, moreover, resulted in rising wage scales.

Meanwhile, however, the stretching out of military programs and expansion of productive facilities relaxed inflationary pressures. Fears of fresh inflation, prompted last summer by a drought and the steel strike, were not borne out. In fact, continued sales of many articles at below-ceiling prices permitted acceleration of the Office of Price Stabilization's program of decontrol, and by the first of December ceilings had been suspended on nearly two-thirds of the items covered by the original freeze order. But there had been no corresponding suspension of wage ceilings. The CIO, though not the AFL, thereupon called for abolition of wage controls.

Recently there has been less discussion of prospects for renewed inflation than of prospects for deflation and a business recession, not in the period immediately ahead, but sometime after defense spending reaches its peak and levels off around the middle of 1953. At the same time, economists assert that the nation's economy is now so delicately balanced that major inflation as well as a major downturn is a possibility.

The uncertainties of the economic and political future seem to be making the Republicans, now that they are about to assume power, less eager than formerly to place sole reliance on monetary and fiscal measures as anti-inflationary weapons. They still may wish to abolish existing price and wage controls. But it begins to look as if they might find it prudent to retain the authority to apply such direct controls as an added weapon in any fight they might have to make against inflation.

Let Christmas Be Gay

Approaches now another anniversary of Christ's birth, which will be celebrated by Americans with a heightened sense of human participation because it is one of the enduring festivals of the human spirit. It is an hour of despair, confusion and conflict, when many feel a sense of guilt or of mockery at the thought of being gay.

But no one proposes to call Christmas off. It is a part of us. We need it more than ever. And perhaps we are more keenly aware of what it means.

Behind Christmas stretch almost 20 centuries of Christianity—a set of beliefs and feelings shared by all men of good will. Christmas can help us to draw strength from Christianity.

The lesson of those 20 centuries is one of courage and hope. Through sorrow and persecution, in meekness and mercy, the followers of the Christian way have triumphed over their conquerors. As long as they never stop believing in something mightier than force, they will triumph again.

The celebrations ahead are a time to renew that faith. Blessed are they that mourn, blessed are the pure in heart, blessed are they that are reviled for being true to the spirit in them. There may be dark days ahead, but Christmas is a time for joy.

Those who are true to the spirit of Christmas need never lack the courage to be merry.

Good Old Budget Time

Early winter around the Pentagon is "budget season," and it is not a particularly happy time for service relationships. News that the proposed $40,000,000,000 military budget for fiscal 1954 contains requests for funds for a third giant aircraft carrier for the Navy, for example, started new rumblings.

Recently Roswell Gilpatric, who is undersecretary of the Air Force, commented rather bitterly in a speech that the military establishment appeared to have four air forces instead of one. But Defense Secretary Lovett retorted it was as unrealistic to say that the Army shouldn't be allowed to have helicopters to evacuate wounded as it was to say that the Air Force should have a few trucks because these are primarily "ground" vehicles.

So much for that, said Mr. Lovett, continuing to stick manfully to his basic premise that there is no inter-service fight brewing in the Pentagon. But evidences of squabbling and nose-thumbing abound, a great deal of it inside the Pentagon, but some in full public view.

How To Keep Well

Caring For Wounds On The Face

Traumatic tattoos develop when a dirty wound is not cleansed properly and cinders or other foreign materials remain imbedded in the scar. These ugly blemishes are a constant source of irritation, especially when on the face. Removal by surgery is possible and the transformation is likely to be phenomenal.

Cinder marks are noted most frequently in children who have fallen in the school yard or an alley. Mother neglected to scrub the wound with soap and water because she was too timid or the child uncooperative. At any rate, the particles remained and gradually became part of the scar. Similar lesions also occur when oil or other debris is blown into the skin by an explosion. In some instances the problem of cleansing the wound is so extensive and painful that the individual must be anesthetized first. Facial scars are no longer considered signs of heroism or participation in a duel; rather they are a source of embarrassment and annoyance. Occasionally the lesions have a marked psychologic effect, producing an inferiority complex. Furthermore, Hollywood is overcrowded with tough looking extras so the chances are slim of turning the handicap into a fortune.

The majority of facial scars seen today stem from auto accidents. The face is most vulnerable to sudden stops; it continues thru the windshield or flattens itself against the dashboard. The parent who allows a child to stand on the front seat also invites trouble; when the brakes are applied the youngster is bound to fall forward because there is nothing for him to hold. Some car manufacturers recognize these dangers and are incorporating built-in crash pads and recessing the once prominent knobs.

After mishaps of this type all facial scars demand the utmost cleanliness and care if the damage to the skin is to be kept to a minimum. Fine suture material is used and the stitches are removed early. Small wounds may be left uncovered for a day or two to avoid the sticking of bandage material in the wound, thus disrupting the normal process of healing. This is not always possible, however, because the physician must neglect the cosmetic aspects of the face and turn to the more pressing and serious problems at hand. The victim may be in shock or bleeding internally, for example, and these conditions take precedence over a face wound. In such instances the physician usually waits six to 10 weeks before recommending plastic surgery. At this time the entire scar is removed and the surrounding soft, healthy tissue is sutured carefully with tailored precision.

HEART FAILURE

E. L. writes: What is meant by ventricle failure?

REPLY

The ventricles of the heart are so weakened or overstretched they no longer are capable of pumping the normal quota of blood. When the left ventricle fails, the individual develops attacks of shortness of breath or a sense of suffocation. Failure of the right ventricle produces dropsy.

INFLAMED NERVE AND HEART

E. R. writes: Could neuritis lead to heart disease?

REPLY

No; but both neuritis and heart involvement could follow the same cause. An example of this type would be beriberi.

TRAVELING CELLS

Mrs. W. writes: Is endometriosis serious?

REPLY

Not in the majority of cases. But when these traveling endometrial cells cause marked lower abdominal distress, surgery may be needed. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on endometriosis.

CHILDHOOD HEADACHE

R. F. writes: If a person suffers from headaches as a child, will she have them all her life?

REPLY

No. Migraine headache, for example, rarely continues after the menopause even tho it begins early in life.

DURATION OF SHINGLES

Mrs. T. writes: How long does shingles usually last?

REPLY

The lesions usually subside within a few weeks but occasionally, neuralgic pain persists for months or years. This complication is more likely to involve older persons. Send a stamped self-addressed envelope for leaflet on shingles (herpes zoster).

FAILING VISION

Mrs. Z. writes: Can change of life or high blood pressure affect the eyesight? A woman of 58 who has both conditions finds she cannot see as well as before, even with glasses.

REPLY

High blood pressure, but not the change of life, may impair vision. Age itself is a possible factor because in other conditions which affect the older person, glasses are of little if any value. Cataract is an example.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Eisenhower Restrains Hot Retort To Demagoguery Charge; Bridge, Books, Strategy Mix On Helena Cruise; Radford Makes Hit With Ike

WASHINGTON — When President-elect Eisenhower heard what President Truman said about demagoguery and his trip to Korea, he not only hit the ceiling, but sat down and wrote out a statement for the press.

If that statement had been published it would have sizzled round the world. It would have made more headlines than some of the President's own torrid letters and press statements.

Roughly, here is what Eisenhower wrote out in longhand and planned to say:

"If President Truman had gone to Korea it would have been political demagoguery, since Mr. Truman is a politician and doesn't have the military background to assess such a situation."

However, Jim Hagerty, press relations adviser to the President-elect, tactfully talked him out of it. In the end, the statement was labeled: "File and forget."

Pacific Pipeline

Backstage With Ike—Aboard the cruiser Helena, Ike played a lot of bridge and read Western stories when he wasn't conferring. His partner at bridge was Herbert Brownell, the new attorney general and patronage boss; also two subordinate naval officers. At NATO Ike used to play bridge with Gen. Al Gruenther, considered the best bridge player in the Army . . . Golfing at Kaneohe, Hawaii, Ike was completely off his game. That was the reason he refused to give his score to newsmen afterward. Not once did he make the rounds under 100, though he ruefully remarked that at Augusta he had shot 86 and 84 . . . The President-elect didn't seem particularly perturbed by the Korean visit, and there was no specific reason why his game was off . . . Ike golfed in red baseball cap, bright yellow shoes, and pink sports shirt . . . Arriving at Pearl Harbor, General "Slick" Persons looked down at the crowd and remarked: "It's nice to see so many friendly faces without worrying how they'll vote later."

Military Strategy — When MacArthur's announcement that he had a plan to end the Korean War was relayed to Eisenhower aboard the Helena, he was skeptical, but did not want to give the public the impression he wasn't open to any and all ideas re Korea . . . Some of the people around him were much harsher in their reaction toward MacArthur, called him "childish." . . . At the Seoul military talks, most sobering warning came from the Air Force. Nature of the warnings cannot be revealed for security reasons, but they were such that Eisenhower probably hasn't made up his mind even now regarding future Korean strategy . . . It looks almost certain that Eisenhower will ask the UN to bring two Chinese Nationalist divisions into the Korean War, one to be kept at the front, the other behind the front, and rotated. Gen Mark Clark, who long has wanted to use troops from Formosa, argued that it was a good idea to test the Nationalists under fire.

Navy Ambassador

It looks like fiery, redheaded Adm. Arthur Radford, commander of the U. S. fleet in the Pacific, has talked himself into a potent position with the President-elect.

Most Navy men have been dubious about Eisenhower's attitude toward the Navy, figured that as a lifelong Army man he would favor his own branch of the service.

However, persuasive Admiral Radford, scheduled to see Eisenhower for exactly one hour at Iwo Jima, stayed on for the entire trip. Eisenhower's stop at Iwo was to refuel and to give the President-elect a chance to stretch his legs. There Admiral Radford met him, and at the end of one hour's talk with Radford, Ike came back to his plane and asked the pilot:

"Can't we make room for the admiral?"

So Radford went along. Furthermore, he had such a way with Eisenhower that he persuaded him to revamp his schedule and stop off at Radford's guest house in Hawaii.

The cruise on the Helena had been arranged well before Eisenhower left the U. S. A., but the stopover in Hawaii was not on the schedule. Original plans called for Eisenhower's departure by air from Hawaii immediately after the Helena docked. However, Admiral Radford had so ingratiated himself with the President-elect by this time that arrangements were changed.

Actually, no military strategy was discussed at Hawaii. The President-elect golfed and relaxed. There were no conferences, except for sessions held by Herbert Brownell and Secretary of the Interior-to-be McKay, who interviewed candidates for governor of Hawaii. Two top candidates are Randolph Crossley, chairman of the GOP Territorial Central Committee, and Sam King, former Hawaiian delegate to Congress.

Anti Air Force

Most significant aspect of the Eisenhower-Radford friendship is the effect it may have on the Air Force. Radford was the most controversial of all top-ranking admirals in blasting the B-36 and working against Secretary of Air Stuart Symington and Secretary of Defense Louey Johnson when Johnson banned the Navy's super airplane carrier.

Radford, then in charge of the Navy's air arm, gave directions to "Operation 23," the secret Navy propaganda office working against the Air Force, met privately with Admiral Gerald F. Bogan just before Bogan wrote his famous letter complaining of Navy morale, and was so critical of the Air Force that Congressman Paul Kilday of Texas, listening to Navy gripes, reproved him:

"Admiral, I am disappointed that you did not come here with an affirmative statement of what the Navy can do, instead of a criticism of what the Air Force can do."

Eventually, Admiral Radford was transferred to the Pacific in order to remove him from the Air Force controversy.

But since his Pacific trip with Ike, he may well come back as chief of naval operations—top man in the Navy.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Depression Look

Men are as they think and those who are products of the great depression are likely to think in an atmosphere of fear. They take on a clerk-like disposition whether in government or business, recalling that courage and enterprise and thrift were forced down in the ugly days of the 1930's. Those who risked most, seemed to suffer most.

This, perhaps more than any other cause, produced the lust for security in place of the vision of a self-made career based on initiative and thrift. A few enterprising individuals risked greatly, even in the worst days of the depression, picking up businesses that had collapsed or were on the verge of collapse and building them into mighty enterprises. Other brave souls started new ventures and many of them did well. And some of the older ones were rescued by new management.

But even among these people, the fear of a recurrent depression had the effect of penurious thinking, not so much in the definition of penny-pinching as in the sense of keeping one eye always peeled for the worst that never happened. A people that has not the courage to fail, never reaches Olympian heights of enterprise, because the view is narrowed; the mind is small. The depression attitude expresses itself in all strata of society in the desire for a guaranteed life in the form of government-provided social securities, in pensions, in fringe benefits and similar devices to eliminate risk.

In government circles this has been particularly true and has been responsible, in no small measure, for the fear of Russia, the dependence on Britain, the appeasements in policy and the acceptance of such insults as we take in our stride, for instance, in the United Nations.

We did experience the historic fact that we could win a war and lose it sumultaneously and that frightened our statesmen as much as the depression frightened our generation. If that could happen, anything could happen. Yet, the explanation for it is so simple that it should have been understood; we were courageous in fighting; we were cowardly in negotiation. When we fought, we were old-fashioned Americans; when we negotiated, we lived in the depression-born atmosphere of fear. We thought that we could buy peace by dollars as we gained prosperity by subsidies.

Those who inherited great or even small fortunes were particularly affected by the fear psychology of the depression. They saw their fortunes diminish by the loss in values and the depreciation of currency. They witnessed the effect of taxation, especially inheritance taxes, on the rich. They concluded that there would be no more rich men in America. They hoped to mitigate the force of the revolution.

Many of them joined Roosevelt, not because they believed in him. Actually, in private conversations, they ridiculed him shamelessly. But they did believe that the techniques which he evolved in the New Deal arrested the revolution before which they cringed during the depression years. They believed that he had saved them from the barricades and the guillotine. They put on the masquerade of a hardly understood liberalism, in the hope that when the revolution did come, they would not be taken for reactionaries.

Many men and women of this segment of our society worked their way into the numerous agencies which, since the war years, have been associated with the conduct of our foreign relations and the development of our foreign trade. There was no courage in their hearts. All that they could permit themselves were such ideas as "the containment policy," or the support of socialist parties in Europe, or appeasing the Russians in the hope that they might become good Christians by imitation. They were always afraid because they were conditioned by the depression years to be afraid, to live in fear of the very revolution which they always saw before them as the only future possible for them.

I write not of Republicans or Democrats but of a sick generation that had lost confidence in a way of life that had given them greater benefits, even during the depression, than any other people enjoyed. They were without hope, expecting at best to stop the tide of revolution before it completely engulfed them. They were willing to give up most to save something.

Maybe Eisenhower, through his personality, can revive high courage. Maybe a new generation will now take hold.

Matter Of Fact

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

War That Must Be Won

WASHINGTON

A bold new plan for winning the war in Indo-China within two years will almost certainly be adopted when Dwight Eisenhower becomes President and John Foster Dulles his secretary of State. This program involves a basic shift of emphasis in American policy, in Europe as well as Asia. It is based on the belief that the seven-year-old Indo-Chinese war must be won, and won soon, if disaster is to be averted. The new plan may be briefly outlined as follows.

First, France will be asked to send at least two more divisions to Indo-China. The French will certainly be reluctant to strip their own defenses to the extent of two full divisions. But this increase in French manpower in Indo-China is considered the key to a military decision over Ho Chi Minh's Communist armies. And the United States will be ready to offer much in return.

The American government will recognize, as the French have long urged, that Indo-China is not simply a French responsibility, but also the responsibility of the United States, as leader of the free world's resistance to Communist aggression. Accordingly, the United States will agree to increase very heavily American supplies of weapons and equipment, particularly aircraft, for Indo-China.

American factories are beginning now to provide the means for this heavy increase in supplies. But if necessary, supplies will be temporarily diverted from the NATO forces in Western Europe, and from American forces not engaged in Korea, in order to permit the greatest possible build-up in the shortest possible time. American troops will not participate directly in the fighting. But American training and supply groups will be provided to support the French and native Viet Nam anti-Communist forces fighting in Indo-China.

U. S. Warning Likely

As another part of the bargain, the United States will issue a clear warning, designed to forestall open Chinese aggression in Indo-China. This is in line with a proposal made by Dulles in a speech in Paris last May, when he said: "Is it not time that the Chinese Communists knew that if, for example, they send Red armies openly into Viet Nam, we will not be content merely to try to meet their armed forces at the point they select for aggression, but by retaliatory action of our fashioning?"

Finally, the French will be urged to make an unequivocal offer of independence to Indo-China, within a specific time limit. The object of this plan is to break the back of Ho Chi Minh's armies within two years at the most, so that the Communists will be reduced to sporadic guerrilla activity. Well armed native troops, it is reasoned, should be able to handle the guerrillas, provided a political settlement giving Indo-China a staple, independent government has been reached in the meantime. Thus within two years French troops could be returned to France, where they are so desperately needed.

In short, this plan calls for giving the war in Indo-China absolute priority over every other American effort abroad, including the rearmament of Western Europe, and excluding only the Korean War. The reasoning behind the plan is simple. The Indo-Chinese War costs the French more than they receive in aid from this country, and it is destroying the best French regular forces. The French have privately warned American officials in Paris that they cannot possibly carry this burden for more than two years, and perhaps only for one year more.

Test For Administration

The loss of Indo-China would begin a process which would in the end see all Asia in Communist hands. As Dulles also accurately said last May, "Indo-China is the key to Southeast Asia, upon the resources of which Japan largely depends."

While the drain in Indo-China continues, moreover, France will remain weak, and will find ways to prevent Germany from becoming stronger than France. Thus Western strategy which is squarely based on a solid defense of Western Europe, will remain essentially a sham as long as the fighting in Indo-China continues. The only way out of this dilemma is to make a virtual necessity, and give a quick military decision in Indo-Chna priority over the defense of Western Europe itself.

American military experts (like Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, chief of Air Staff, who returned recently from Indo-China) agree with the French commanders on the spot that victory in Indo-China is militarily possible, under some such all-out program as that outlined above. Whether this program is politically possible is another question. It will require the most determined and effective leadership from Eisenhower and Dulles to persuade the American Congress—let alone the French—that the plan is workable and worth the price. Indeed it becomes daily more clear that Asia's twin wars, in Korea and Indo-China, will provide at the very outset a grave test — and a great opportunity—for the new administration.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—This is a tale of tragedy that mothers and fathers of boys who are risking their lives in Korea will not be happy to read—and yet it may be one of the things that will cause the Eisenhower administration to consider seriously the wisdom of a naval blockade to help bring peace in the Far East.

Red China needs rubber for tires to be used on trucks and motors vehicles of all kinds and on airplane wheels. These are essential for war operations against American boys and the soldiers of other United Nations battalions.

Rubber has been embargoed, so Red China can't get it from most of the producing areas of the world.

But Ceylon is now exporting rubber to Red China in ever-increasing quantities. Whereas Red China didn't buy much rubber in 1950, the figures show that it stepped up its purchases from Ceylon in 1951 and now has more than trebled the 1951 purchases.

U. S. Objectives Circumvented

Naturally the American government didn't like it and began making representations about it to Ceylon, which is a British dominion. But since Ceylon isn't a member of the UN, it has refused to shut off its exports of rubber. Red China, moreover, dangled the promise of rice to the Ceylonese. Everybody knows China needs rice for its own people and shouldn't be exporting the commodity at all. But the Ceylonese cabinet on October 17, 1952, approved a barter deal whereby the Ceylon government agreed to sell 22,312 tons of rubber for 80,000 tons of rice—a very attractive deal for the Ceylonese. When a ton of rubber will bring nearly four tons of rice, it is something really alluring to a rice-eating country.

Then the United States Government stepped in an blocked the export of refined sulphur to Ceylon. This article is very vital to the care of rubber trees. The British government objected to American policy and saw to it that the Ceylonese got their sulphur out of the American supply which had been exported to Britain. This tragic circumvention of American objectives is not widely known. The British argued that they were maintaining their normal pattern of exports, but the United States, conceding this point, tried to put direct pressure on Ceylon to stop rubber exports that were aiding the Red Chinese to kill American boys.

Neither Britain nor Malaya sends any rubber to Red China because of the embargo, but the British government has thwarted the American government's efforts to prevent Red China from getting rubber from the only source available to it—Ceylon. Military men are dismayed by the occurrence.

It is thought here that not all the rubber obtained by Red China from Ceylon is going directly to Korea but that some of it is being shipped to Soviet Russia, where most of the weapons and vehicles for the Korean War are manufactured.

Approximately 75,000 tons of rubber are going annually from British colonies to Soviet Russia under an agreement with the United States. So, with a part of the Ceylon quota, the Soviet now is making substantial additions to her armament program in which rubber plays a vital part.

Some Nations Unco-operative

How can the United States put an end to the violations of the spirit as well as the letter of the embargo against the Communist forces in Korea and their suppliers—Soviet Russia? To get from Ceylon, for instance, to the Red China ports, Communist vessels are used. In any other war a blockade would be established to search and seize vessels carrying contraband cargoes. High American officials have refused to impose such a blockade because, as one man phrases it, this would be "an act of war." Yet the Korean operation is bigger than most wars in American history. In fact, the casualties are beginning to compare already with American losses in World War I.

By detaining vessels in the waters of the Indian Ocean and in the South China Sea, our blockading navy could order the ships to turn back to their ports of origin. Blockades are customary in wartime but in the Korean War, while it has become customary to kill and wound tens of thousands of American boys, still some of the governments allied with us, and supposed to share our views against Communist imperialism, are not co-operating.

It's a sad story which the next administration will have to tackle. For the Truman regime, despite revelations of this kind by committees of Congress, has neglected to impose a blockade, which is one of the most effective ways to put economic pressure on Red China and help force a truce.

Ideas, not expensive ornaments, are what make a Christmas tree memorable, symbolic and beautiful!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Without so much as a string of lights but with an idea or two and perhaps a trip to the dime store, you can deck a tree spendiforously. Some of the most wondrous and fascinating Christmas trees I have seen were those decorated by young couples (some of them in service) who had no storeroom stocked with tree ornaments collected through the past and whose purses at Christmas time were already dangerously strained.

Tree-Trimming Ideas

With just a table-sized tree, the parents of a three-year-old youngster bedazzled the child's eyes and kept Christmas a matter of enchanting delight for days. They hung the tree with midget-sized lollypops, candy canes, gingerbread men and plastic toys. Each day they permitted the youngster to remove a toy and a candy.

A just-married couple made a bit of Victoriana of their tiny tree with miniature fans, cornucopias, velvet bows and gilded walnuts. The fans and cornucopias were fashioned of vari-colored metallic paper and tied to the branches ribbon. By inserting screws in the gilded walnuts, they could be suspended like glass balls.

A service pair lavished silver rain on a five-foot pine and then attached paper cut-outs of Navy signal flags to the end of each branch, with red, white and blue ribbons. There's a tree that's merry as a shore-leave gig!

Merry And Symbolic

Another couple, yearning over the memory of the large trees that dominated their Christmasses in childhood, bought a giant and flooded it with concealed bulbs and coffee can lids. They covered each branch with plastic snow and crowned all with one enormous twinkling star. With dozens of "store-bought" ornaments they could not have matched the symbolism and beauty they created with their imaginatively, simply-decked Yule tree!

It is not the trees that you trim with customary balls and baubles that you remember most through the years. It's the one you fashion yourself with fondness!

Chamber Will List Calendar Of Local Events

Will Avoid Conflict Of Community Plans

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will establish and maintain a calendar of community events, Anthony Saeli, manager, announced yesterday.

Saeli said the calendar, which will list the date of every important meeting, dinner, social or other event of public interest, is being set up to fill a long-felt need for a central clearing house of information.

The primary purpose of the project, Saeli explained, will be to furnish information and to avoid conflict of dates for important events.

The need for such a calendar became apparent earlier this month when several conflicts in dates developed during the Community Chest drive, he said.

Saeli pointed out that if an organization is planning an important event — dinner, meeting or social affair — it will render a community service by reporting the event and date to the Chamber office.

By doing so, he added, the organization may help to avoid complications resulting from conflicts with other public events.

The Chamber calendar will enable any organization planning an important event to determine whether the date selected by it will conflict with the dates of other scheduled events.

So that it may render the best possible service to the community, the Chamber urges all organizations and agencies planning important public events to report them to the Chamber office.

All information received by the Chamber will be compiled and made available to the public, Saeli said.

Chamber Will List Calendar Of Local Events

Will Avoid Conflict Of Community Plans

The Cumberland Chamber of Commerce will establish and maintain a calendar of community events, Anthony Saeli, manager, announced yesterday.

Saeli said the calendar, which will list the date of every important meeting, dinner, social or other event of public interest, is being set up to fill a long-felt need for a central clearing house of information.

The primary purpose of the project, Saeli explained, will be to furnish information and to avoid conflict of dates for important events.

The need for such a calendar became apparent earlier this month when several conflicts in dates developed during the Community Chest drive, he said.

Saeli pointed out that if an organization is planning an important event — dinner, meeting or social affair — it will render a community service by reporting the event and date to the Chamber office.

By doing so, he added, the organization may help to avoid complications resulting from conflicts with other public events.

The Chamber calendar will enable any organization planning an important event to determine whether the date selected by it will conflict with the dates of other scheduled events.

So that it may render the best possible service to the community, the Chamber urges all organizations and agencies planning important public events to report them to the Chamber office.

All information received by the Chamber will be compiled and made available to the public, Saeli said.

Car Strikes Pole As Autoist Sleeps

A Ridgeley driver escaped injury Thursday night when he fell asleep and his car snapped a telephone pole and overturned on Dingle Hill.

Allan L. Bosley, 210 Main Street, Ridgeley, the operator, was headed up the hill into Cumberland at 11:30 p. m.

After he dozed off, the machine careened across Route 220, and hit the pole, scattering lines over the highway. The car overturned and landed on its wheels, according to City Police who investigated.

Traffic on McMullen Highway was blocked for 45 minutes as linesmen cleared the road of the wires, the investigators reported.

Bosley forfeited $11.45 bond on a reckless driving charge in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday morning.

Traffic Is Normal Following Wreck

Traffic was normal yesterday on the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad after the tracks were cleared at Rowlesburg, W. Va., of the derailment of the National Limited.

Wreck crews had the eastbound tracks ready for operation this morning at 4:20. The westbound tracks were used for both east and westbound traffic after they were cleared Thursday.

The eastbound National Limited was derailed Thursday at 2 a. m., at the Rowlesburg station. A helper engine and Diesel engine and seven coaches left the track but did not overturn or become uncoupled.

The remaining five left on the rails were used to haul the 101 uninjured passengers back to Grafton with an engine obtained at Blazer, W. Va.

On The Line
by Bob Considine

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—(INS)—Christmas card manufacturers, those wholesale purveyors of a sentiment which neither they nor most of us seem to understand, are studiously eliminating the Christ from Christmas.

We've received pretty cards this year and appreciate same very much. Had a card with a tenderly tinted view of a battleship belching a broadside, a lot of cards with wistful dogs, horses, cats; views of the Manhattan skyline from Brooklyn, a bewildering variety of front doors, a pretty painting of a Swedish bridge ("God jul och gott nytt ar from Bjarne Steinsvik"), a superbly embossed card from Lucian Sprague, president of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railway, giving the first breathtaking sentence of the constitution, and a shot of a Kremlin tower from my good friend Eddy Gilmore, the AP's Moscow correspondent. As said at start, the remembrance was warming.

About one out of 20 have anything to do with the birth of Christ. Perhaps the card companies, or the people who this season are exchanging the dizzy number of 1,500,000,000 cards, have decided that since everything else in life seems to be moving along they might as well view Christmas with a progressive eye and eliminate its traditional factors.

Whatever the reason, there aren't many mangers floating through the mails these days, nor infants, nor Marys nor Josephs, nor magi, nor oxen, nor Bethlehem stars, nor shepherds, nor heavenly hosts.

Call me Scrooge, but I can't quite experience the haunting tingle of bygone Christmases by resting the eye upon a colored picture of the Eiffel Tower. The sleighbells don't ring in my ear (as they probably should) when I open a card which is a photograph of a family — usually good friends of ours —staring fixedly at me.

For me there's something less than goose-pimples in the picture of a chubby kitten who while playing with a ball of yarn has spelled out "To my cheery, chummy pal, mighty square and true, kind we don't so often meet, but lucky when we do! Merry Xmas!!!" worries me. How did she cross the "x" so good, at her age? Things like that. Anyway, I can't squeeze from it that old feeling I had as a child, when after midnight mass the bundled parisoner would troop down into what we called the "lower church" darkened and spooky and marvel at the unveiling of the creche.

Snow is fine and all that, but there wasn't any around when Christ was born. Nor reindeer being ridden by cartooned images of the dear little ones of the family. Nor hack poets. There was mainly this child, as I get it, and his mother, and she wrapped him in some of her clothing and laid him in the manger of a cave because, as a good reporter named Luke wrote a few years later, the family had had some hotel trouble.

The Holy Family appears to be still having trouble finding room . . . at least room on the cards.

I'm indebted, if that's the word, to Dick Falk, poet laureate of the Barker Greeting Card Co., of Cincinnati, for the 1,500,000,000 figure used above. He also swears on a stack of cards I received from a number of favored gambling halls in Las Vegas, Nev., (holly-encrusted dice tables on a field of mistletoed faro dealers) that the following is true:

The average family sends 75 Christmas cards. Eleven per cent of the cards you'll receive come from persons you omitted from your list. Sixteen per cent of the cards arrive after Christmas. More than three per cent wind up in the dead letter office. The last item is interesting. And appropriate, when one considers the new trend in Christmas cards. Their designers appear to have given up the symbol of life.

HAGER'S — Large bananas, 13c pound. Christmas oranges, 49c bag. Fancy tangerines, dozens - bags - crates. Tractor-trailer loads. Quantity, quality, low prices — open evenings.

Car Strikes Pole As Autoist Sleeps

A Ridgeley driver escaped injury Thursday night when he fell asleep and his car snapped a telephone pole and overturned on Dingle Hill.

Allan L. Bosley, 210 Main Street, Ridgeley, the operator, was headed up the hill into Cumberland at 11:30 p. m.

After he dozed off, the machine careened across Route 220, and hit the pole, scattering lines over the highway. The car overturned and landed on its wheels, according to City Police who investigated.

Traffic on McMullen Highway was blocked for 45 minutes as linesmen cleared the road of the wires, the investigators reported.

Bosley forfeited $11.45 bond on a reckless driving charge in Trial Magistrates Court yesterday morning.

Traffic Is Normal Following Wreck

Traffic was normal yesterday on the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad after the tracks were cleared at Rowlesburg, W. Va., of the derailment of the National Limited.

Wreck crews had the eastbound tracks ready for operation this morning at 4:20. The westbound tracks were used for both east and westbound traffic after they were cleared Thursday.

The eastbound National Limited was derailed Thursday at 2 a. m., at the Rowlesburg station. A helper engine and Diesel engine and seven coaches left the track but did not overturn or become uncoupled.

The remaining five left on the rails were used to haul the 101 uninjured passengers back to Grafton with an engine obtained at Blazer, W. Va.

On The Line
by Bob Considine

NEW YORK, Dec. 19—(INS)—Christmas card manufacturers, those wholesale purveyors of a sentiment which neither they nor most of us seem to understand, are studiously eliminating the Christ from Christmas.

We've received pretty cards this year and appreciate same very much. Had a card with a tenderly tinted view of a battleship belching a broadside, a lot of cards with wistful dogs, horses, cats; views of the Manhattan skyline from Brooklyn, a bewildering variety of front doors, a pretty painting of a Swedish bridge ("God jul och gott nytt ar from Bjarne Steinsvik"), a superbly embossed card from Lucian Sprague, president of the Minneapolis and St. Louis Railway, giving the first breathtaking sentence of the constitution, and a shot of a Kremlin tower from my good friend Eddy Gilmore, the AP's Moscow correspondent. As said at start, the remembrance was warming.

About one out of 20 have anything to do with the birth of Christ. Perhaps the card companies, or the people who this season are exchanging the dizzy number of 1,500,000,000 cards, have decided that since everything else in life seems to be moving along they might as well view Christmas with a progressive eye and eliminate its traditional factors.

Whatever the reason, there aren't many mangers floating through the mails these days, nor infants, nor Marys nor Josephs, nor magi, nor oxen, nor Bethlehem stars, nor shepherds, nor heavenly hosts.

Call me Scrooge, but I can't quite experience the haunting tingle of bygone Christmases by resting the eye upon a colored picture of the Eiffel Tower. The sleighbells don't ring in my ear (as they probably should) when I open a card which is a photograph of a family — usually good friends of ours —staring fixedly at me.

For me there's something less than goose-pimples in the picture of a chubby kitten who while playing with a ball of yarn has spelled out "To my cheery, chummy pal, mighty square and true, kind we don't so often meet, but lucky when we do! Merry Xmas!!!" worries me. How did she cross the "x" so good, at her age? Things like that. Anyway, I can't squeeze from it that old feeling I had as a child, when after midnight mass the bundled parisoner would troop down into what we called the "lower church" darkened and spooky and marvel at the unveiling of the creche.

Snow is fine and all that, but there wasn't any around when Christ was born. Nor reindeer being ridden by cartooned images of the dear little ones of the family. Nor hack poets. There was mainly this child, as I get it, and his mother, and she wrapped him in some of her clothing and laid him in the manger of a cave because, as a good reporter named Luke wrote a few years later, the family had had some hotel trouble.

The Holy Family appears to be still having trouble finding room . . . at least room on the cards.

I'm indebted, if that's the word, to Dick Falk, poet laureate of the Barker Greeting Card Co., of Cincinnati, for the 1,500,000,000 figure used above. He also swears on a stack of cards I received from a number of favored gambling halls in Las Vegas, Nev., (holly-encrusted dice tables on a field of mistletoed faro dealers) that the following is true:

The average family sends 75 Christmas cards. Eleven per cent of the cards you'll receive come from persons you omitted from your list. Sixteen per cent of the cards arrive after Christmas. More than three per cent wind up in the dead letter office. The last item is interesting. And appropriate, when one considers the new trend in Christmas cards. Their designers appear to have given up the symbol of life.

State Roads Commission Gives Approval To Construction Of Proposed Parkway

The State Roads Commission, looking at the project from the roads angle, has given support to construction of the proposed C&O Canal Parkway, the first backing received from any state agency.

Russell H. McCain, chairman of the SRC in a telephone conversation yesterday, told newsmen that while the project is not considered as important as some others, the factors of handling traffic and getting better roads had to be considered.

He said he felt that if "we could get it (the parkway) for only the cost of rights-of-way, we should go along."

McCain said the recommendation was made with two qualifications: (1) That the people of Maryland and the public would have access to the Potomac River; and (2) that the federal government and state of Maryland get together and agree that there would be no barriers to industrial development or the use of resources by industry.

He said the SRC had forwarded its recommendation to the State Planning Commission a week or ten days ago.

The project has hit strong opposition from the State Department of Forests and Parks and groups in Montgomery, Washington and Frederick counties.

Opposition has been strong especially in the counties named from sportsmen's groups.

But Allegany County's sportsmen have given their support to the parkway along with the City of Cumberland. The Allegany County Delegation told the Mayor and Council recently it would do what it could to aid the city's cause during the approaching General Assembly session.

In 1951, the legislature appointed a committee to study the proposed parkway. Two members of the Board of Natural Resources, the SRC and State Planning Commission were named to the group.

This week, a minority report of the Board of Natural Resources recommended scrapping the plan.

A joint report has not been publicized but been drafted by the committee. The Resources Board does not concur in the recommendations so the "minority" report was written.

The board proposed to recommend to the General Assembly that the state refrain from buying land adjacent to the canal to develop the federal, 150-mile project from Washington to Cumberland.

In addition, it said it will ask that 5,156 acres of land owned by the National Park Service be returned to the state.

The Park Service wants Maryland to buy about 11,000 acres of land along the canal which runs from Great Falls to Cumberland and cede it to the federal government.

The Senate Finance Committee in 1950 pigeon-holed a bill to accomplish that and asked for the joint study.

The cost of buying up the extra land was originally estimated at $1 million, but now ranges up to $4 million. The Park Service figured the entire parkway development would cost some $17 million.

The board's chief objection to the project is that new industries would be dended access across the parkway to the Maryland-owned Potomac River. The danger to fish and wildlife was also cited in the report.

The Game and Inland Fish Commission and the Department of Forests and Parks said they had plans to use 11 areas along the canal if the land is returned. They would set up parks, picnic areas, fishing sites and other recreational projects.

County Board Lets Contract For Replacing Building Roof

The contract for replacing the roof of the county building on Cumberland Street which houses the Allegany County Welfare office was let yesterday to the George Construction Company on its bid of $1,500.

It was the only bid received on the roofing project and was accepted by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

Prior to letting the contract a letter receved by the commissioners from Alex J. Schute, local roofing contractor, was read.

Schute raised objections to the manner in which specifications were drawn and stated that "only two persons in the city would undertake the work due to the way the specifications were drawn." He also charged that the specifications were drawn so as to let the county "wide open to excessive charges."

Schute listed a number of reasons in his opinion why the specifications should not have been for a mopped-on tar roof. He said the roof was too steep and the hot tar would run. It would be unsightly and would necessitate excessive labor. Schute also claims no "intelligent" bid could be made for the removal of deteriorated sheeting as no amounts were included in the specificatons. He also said there was no mention made as to the treatment of the sides of the dormers on the roof. No guarantee was called for in the work, he added.

Members of the board commented that an inspection of the roof would give any contractor the necessary information as to the quantity of sheeting deteriorated and from the inspection an intelligent bid could be rendered.

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, county health officer, sent a letter to the board concerning the sewage disposal for the LaVale Boulevard Court housing project in LaVale.

The health officer stated he has informed the State Board of Health that septic tanks would be installed to handle the sewage from houses, which will be built one or two at a time.

Beall And Romney Win Fifth Straight

Finzel Quint Scores 74-65 Over Piedmont

Thompson Hits Cords For 27 Points; Lions Lose 3rd Straight

FROSTBURG, Dec. 19 — Beall High's rangy, veteran quint made it five in a row tonight with a surprizingly easy 74-65 triumph over Piedmont High's Lions.

It was the third loss in a row for the Piedmont cagers and maintained Beall's 70-plus scoring average in the past four games.

Coach "Ebbie" Finzel's Mountaineers stepped out to a 12-2 lead in the initial stanza and led 24-16 at the close of the period. With five minutes remaining in the second quarter the Frostburgers enjoyed a 34-19 margin and left the floor at intermission with a 41-30 lead.

About 500 fans saw Beall hike its lead to 20 points at 52-32 in the first three minutes of the second half and the Frostburg quint coasted from that point, leading 58-43 at the end of the period.

The closest the Piedmont team came to the Finzelmen after the first quarter was nine points late in the second period as Bobby Niland, who scored 19 of his 23 points in the first half, began hitting the hoops. However Beall pulled steadily away until late in the game when Piedmont again whittled the margin to nine at the close of the contest.

The home team lost four regulars on personal fouls with Bill Murray leaving in the third period with the count 52-36, Beall and Ronnie Brenneman, Glen Tomlinson and Captain Bill Davis all exiting in the final three minutes of play.

Piedmont lost substitute Tommy Miller via personals in the third canto.

Paul Thompson hit the cords for 27 points to pace the Beall attack while Niland had 23 for Piedmont. The lineups:

As You Were

(This is the 31st in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

This handsome looking fellow was a topnotch goalie in the W.M.I. Soccer League over a quarter of a century ago and one of the tricks he mastered was punching a soccer ball almost half the distance of the field after making a save at the uprights. If you think that's easy just try it. While he played high school soccer and was also a good amateur baseball player, the sport in which he was better known was basketball. He was the spark-plug of the W.M.I. League champions of 1927 and after being graduated from high school he was the scoring ace of a local independent quint for seven seasons. His speciality was layup shots while traveling into the hoop at terrific speed. Several pro teams made him offers but he turned them down. He had more bounce to the ounce than the average athlete of that era and he was one of the slickest ball handlers ever developed around this section. In recent years this fellow refereed numerous high school basketball games in Western Pennsylvania. He is now president of the North Fork Country Club and played against the Cumberland Country Club golf team last summer. What's his name?

town, Pa.

He's Cletus "Vic" May, who led LaSalle High to its lone W.M.I. League basketball title in 1927. He was soccer goalie of LaSalle teams for several years. In 1928 he joined the Cumberland Caseys basketball team and sparked them to many victories over a seven-year period. "Vic" is now manager of the Personal Finance Company at Johnstown, Pa.

FROSTBURG, Dec. 19 — Beall High's rangy, veteran quint made it five in a row tonight with a surprizingly easy 74-65 triumph over Piedmont High's Lions.

It was the third loss in a row for the Piedmont cagers and maintained Beall's 70-plus scoring average in the past four games.

Coach "Ebbie" Finzel's Mountaineers stepped out to a 12-2 lead in the initial stanza and led 24-16 at the close of the period. With five minutes remaining in the second quarter the Frostburgers enjoyed a 34-19 margin and left the floor at intermission with a 41-30 lead.

About 500 fans saw Beall hike its lead to 20 points at 52-32 in the first three minutes of the second half and the Frostburg quint coasted from that point, leading 58-43 at the end of the period.

However Beall pulled steadily away until late in the game when Piedmont again whittled the margin to nine at the close of the contest.

The home team lost four regulars on personal fouls with Bill Murray leaving in the third period with the count 52-36, Beall and Ronnie Brenneman, Glen Tomlinson and Captain Bill Davis all exiting in the final three minutes of play.

As You Were

(This is the 31st in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

This handsome looking fellow was a topnotch goalie in the W.M.I. Soccer League over a quarter of a century ago and one of the tricks he mastered was punching a soccer ball almost half the distance of the field after making a save at the uprights. If you think that's easy just try it. While he played high school soccer and was also a good amateur baseball player, the sport in which he was better known was basketball. He was the spark-plug of the W.M.I. League champions of 1927 and after being graduated from high school he was the scoring ace of a local independent quint for seven seasons. His speciality was layup shots while traveling into the hoop at terrific speed. Several pro teams made him offers but he turned them down. He had more bounce to the ounce than the average athlete of that era and he was one of the slickest ball handlers ever developed around this section. In recent years this fellow refereed numerous high school basketball games in Western Pennsylvania. He is now president of the North Fork Country Club and played against the Cumberland Country Club golf team last summer. What's his name?

He's Cletus "Vic" May, who led LaSalle High to its lone W.M.I. League basketball title in 1927. He was soccer goalie of LaSalle teams for several years. In 1928 he joined the Cumberland Caseys basketball team and sparked them to many victories over a seven-year period. "Vic" is now manager of the Personal Finance Company at Johnstown, Pa.

Rams, Detroit Clash Sunday

Meet In NFL Game At Briggs Stadium

DETROIT, Dec. 19 (AP)—Hampton Pool, disturbed by the swaggering mental outlook of his Los Angeles Rams, fears the Detroit Lions will whip the Rams Sunday.

Pool watched his chilled squad work out on Briggs Stadium's frozen turf today and insisted he wasn't catching the fever of pessimism that hits so many coaches before big games.

"We've won eight straight games and the boys are beginning to think they can beat anyone. That's not healthy. They're not worried enough right now about this game."

The workout was the Rams' only one here in Detroit prior to the nationally-televised playoff for the national conference title before a near-sellout crowd of 50,000.

Sunday's winner will move over to Cleveland for the Dec. 28 National Football League title game against the American Conference champion Cleveland Browns.

"There are two other reasons I'm worried about this game," Pool said.

"First, our pass defense. It's just patched together now and we have not had time to smooth it out.

"Secondly, the Lions' offensive and defensive tackles handled our linemen easily in the two games the Lions won from us. They're liable to do that again. If they do, we're in bad shape."

THE CLARKSBURG TIREMEN should make a worthwhile opponent for the Old Germans this season.

Led by Ken Alessi, formerly of W.V.U., who scored 18 points, the Tiremen whipped the Wheeling Blues the other day in Clarksburg by the score of 101-79.

The winners' lineup included Leland Byrd, Sam Berry, Harry "Moo" Moore and Jim Fox.

Gene Joseph, ex-Dayton U. star, scored 28 points for Mike Valan's team. Other Blues players were Andy Tonkovich, "Chuck" Dickman, Bobby Wenzel, Gene Britt and Jule Rivlin.

ST. JOHN'S HIGH of Frederick surprised the other night by holding Homer Brooks' Frederick High Cadets to a 47-41 score.

The Saints outscored Frederick 14 to 11 from the field but blew the game at the charity line where they were outpointed, 25 to 13.

BOB ADDIE, of the Washington Herald, writes:

"Basketball has changed radically from the old days of the center tap after each point but the same people who wanted to streamline the game for more action now are wondering if they haven't made it a farce because of the high scoring games. It's no longer unusual for colleges, as well as pros, to go over the 100 mark in scoring. That isn't basketball—it's a track meet."

Rams, Detroit Clash Sunday

Meet In NFL Game At Briggs Stadium

DETROIT, Dec. 19 (AP)—Hampton Pool, disturbed by the swaggering mental outlook of his Los Angeles Rams, fears the Detroit Lions will whip the Rams Sunday.

Pool watched his chilled squad work out on Briggs Stadium's frozen turf today and insisted he wasn't catching the fever of pessimism that hits so many coaches before big games.

"We've won eight straight games and the boys are beginning to think they can beat anyone. That's not healthy. They're not worried enough right now about this game."

The workout was the Rams' only one here in Detroit prior to the nationally-televised playoff for the national conference title before a near-sellout crowd of 50,000.

Sunday's winner will move over to Cleveland for the Dec. 28 National Football League title game against the American Conference champion Cleveland Browns.

"There are two other reasons I'm worried about this game," Pool said.

"First, our pass defense. It's just patched together now and we have not had time to smooth it out.

"Secondly, the Lions' offensive and defensive tackles handled our linemen easily in the two games the Lions won from us. They're liable to do that again. If they do, we're in bad shape."

Oshkosh, Wisc.; Minneapolis and St. Cloud, Minn.

Nick does his scouting in this territory every year.

THE CLARKSBURG TIREMEN should make a worthwhile opponent for the Old Germans this season.

Led by Ken Alessi, formerly of W.V.U., who scored 18 points, the Tiremen whipped the Wheeling Blues the other day in Clarksburg by the score of 101-79.

The winners' lineup included Leland Byrd, Sam Berry, Harry "Moo" Moore and Jim Fox.

Gene Joseph, ex-Dayton U. star, scored 28 points for Mike Valan's team. Other Blues players were Andy Tonkovich, "Chuck" Dickman, Bobby Wenzel, Gene Britt and Jule Rivlin.

ST. JOHN'S HIGH of Frederick surprised the other night by holding Homer Brooks' Frederick High Cadets to a 47-41 score.

The Saints outscored Frederick 14 to 11 from the field but blew the game at the charity line where they were outpointed, 25 to 13.

BOB ADDIE, of the Washington Herald, writes:

"Basketball has changed radically from the old days of the center tap after each point but the same people who wanted to streamline the game for more action now are wondering if they haven't made it a farce because of the high scoring games. It's no longer unusual for colleges, as well as pros, to go over the 100 mark in scoring. That isn't basketball—it's a track meet."

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 19 (INS)—Roz Russell and Marie Wilson will repeat as co-stars in "You Can't Judge A Lady," a new comedy bought for them by Freddie Brisson.

I say it is a "repeat" for the girls because they made "Never Wave At A WAC" together and it is the laughs they're getting as a comedy team at previews that inspired this new yarn.

It's by John Marshall and tells the story of a TV actress (Roz) who becomes innocently involved with a gangster's moll (Marie).

First, of course, Rosalind stars on Broadway in "Wonderful Town" and Marie will be busy with "My Friend Irma" on TV and radio.

Speaking of "Never Wave At A WAC," it opens in Washington, D. C., Jan. 28.

Carrying a print of "Moulin Rouge," John Huston arrives in town tomorrow. He'll go to the Johnston office for a clearance on the can-can sequence of the picture.

I talked with John the day he arrived in New York and he tells me that he's leaving Hollywood the day after the premiere (next Wednesday), hoping to be in Ireland in time to spend Christmas with Ricky and his two children.

"We have a wonderful place in Kildare County just an hour out of Dublin," John told me.

John asked me to come and see them in Ireland when I go to the coronation next summer.

Spent such a pleasant hour with Antonio Olinto of the O'Globo, the Rio de Janeiro newspaper in which my column appears. Mr. Olinto not only is well up on the subjects of economy, sociology and government control, but he also writes motion picture news. His articles appear both in O'Globo and in Cinelandia, a fan magazine, which also publishes my articles.

Mr. Olinto tells me that Bette Davis and Joan Crawford lead the established stars in popularity in South America, while Ava Gardner and Shelley Winters are the favorite younger stars.

While here, Mr. Olinto lectured at UCLA, gave an illustration of the samba for Lana Turner's picture, "Latin Lovers," and visited every studio.

The Japanese News, printed in Tokyo, has a strange story about Ken Duncan, the gun-toting Hollywood cowboy star.

Says the Japanese newspaper: "The body of Yonetaro Ueno, a business man who evidently killed himself by self-imposed starvation, was discovered in his home near Osaka. The police discovered a note close to the body saying, 'visit to Japan of star wrecked my family and drove me to death—murder without a gun.'"

Duncan toured Japan capturing many a heart including that of the wife of the suicide. The 22-year-old Sumiko-San went far from home following the itinerary of Duncan "and her family life was never peaceful after that," says the News.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at Random: Lana Turner wants to keep the blue sapphire mink coat designed for her by Teitelbaum for "Latin Lovers."

Mrs. Noah Berry is in a local hospital suffering with a lung affliction.

If a devoted attitude means anything, Helmut Dantine is crazy for Marie McAfee, red-headed U-I starlet. He gazed into her eyes and held her hand at the Sportsman's Lodge.

Frances (Mrs. Van) Heflin returns Christmas Day, crutches and all. Her doctor told her to come directly home and that's what she's doing.

Such a nice note from Perle Mesta, American minister to Luxembourg, wishing me a Merry Christmas.

I like the card from Bing and the boys, the many religious cards which predominate all the others. The one from Joan Caulfield and Frank Ross is particularly lovely.

Johnny Meyer gets back from Paris in time to spend Christmas with his best girl—his mother.

Parties, parties, parties! Never have there been as many, even in the pre-war days. The latest invitation comes from Mr. and Mrs. Marti von Dehn, who are entertaining Prince Christian of Hanover at a dinner party Monday night. He is the brother of the Queen of Greece, and a second cousin of young Queen Elizabeth.

That's all today. See you Monday.

Daily Bridge Lesson

BOTH CAN BE WRONG

WONDERING which of two partners was wrong, in the bidding of a disastrous hand, is often a quest for an answer that is right, regardless of what you say. The worst calamities usually come when both have let themselves get off the beam at one point or another, especially if the deal is a misfit, and most emphatically if the opponents also have a misfit which enables them to do a plethora of cross-ruffing.

	♠ K 9 8 5 4 3 2 ♥ 3 ♦ Q 10 8 5 3 ♣ None
♠ A Q ♥ J 10 9 8 6 5 2 ♦ None ♣ A 8 5 2	N W E S	♠ J 10 7 ♥ None ♦ A J 9 7 4 2 ♣ 10 9 6 3
	♠ 6 ♥ A K Q 7 4 ♦ K 6 ♣ K Q J 7 4

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

North said after the debacle that he should have shifted from 4-Clubs into 4-Hearts, South's first-bid suit, especially since he had one card of it. But he declared he was afraid that would encourage South to reach out for a slam. South opined that North was still more wrong in not bidding his diamonds on the second or third round. In that suit the damage would have been less. Even 3-No Trumps bid by either partner along the way would have been better. Probably South should have bid that anyway. In clubs, the deal was played in absolutely the worst of the five possible declarations, as any other suit or No Trumps would have been less costly.

West's heart J lead was ruffed by the club 3, the diamond A scored and the 7 was ruffed by the club 2, the heart 8 by the club 6, the diamond 4 by the club K and A, the heart 6 by the club 9. South then ruffed the diamond 2 with the club Q, scored the club J and led the club 7 to the 8. West laid down the spade A, then led the heart 9 to the A, South following with the heart K and club 4 to have a total of five tricks against the defenders' eight, so that he was down five.

Where freak distributions like this are in the hands of one partnership, it generally happens that the mechanics of the imperfect shuffle, which gave them those unbalanced patterns, also furnishes the opposing pair with a like imbalance, so that every suit is stacked against you unless you have one suit that fits.

Your Weekend Question

What are the special advantages of making an honor combination lead against a No Trump game contract, instead of a fourth-best or top-of-nothing opening from some suit in which you lack the necessary honors to justify it?

John asked me to come and see them in Ireland when I go to the coronation next summer.

Spent such a pleasant hour with Antonio Olinto of the O'Globo, the Rio de Janeiro newspaper in which my column appears. Mr. Olinto not only is well up on the subjects of economy, sociology and government control, but he also writes motion picture news. His articles appear both in O'Globo and in Cinelandia, a fan magazine, which also publishes my articles.

Mr. Olinto tells me that Bette Davis and Joan Crawford lead the established stars in popularity in South America, while Ava Gardner and Shelley Winters are the favorite younger stars.

While here, Mr. Olinto lectured at UCLA, gave an illustration of the samba for Lana Turner's picture, "Latin Lovers," and visited every studio.

The Japanese News, printed in Tokyo, has a strange story about Ken Duncan, the gun-toting Hollywood cowboy star.

Says the Japanese newspaper: "The body of Yonetaro Ueno, a business man who evidently killed himself by self-imposed starvation, was discovered in his home near Osaka. The police discovered a note close to the body saying, 'visit to Japan of star wrecked my family and drove me to death—murder without a gun."

Duncan toured Japan capturing many a heart including that of the wife of the suicide. The 22-year-old Sumiko-San went far from home following the itinerary of Duncan "and her family life was never peaceful after that," says the News.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at Random: Lana Turner wants to keep the blue sapphire mink coat designed for her by Teitelbaum for "Latin Lovers."

Mrs. Noah Berry is in a local hospital suffering with a lung affliction.

If a devoted attitude means anything, Helmut Dantine is crazy for Marie McAfee, red-headed U-I starlet. He gazed into her eyes and held her hand at the Sportsman's Lodge.

Frances (Mrs. Van) Heflin returns Christmas Day, crutches and all. Her doctor told her to come directly home and that's what she's doing.

Such a nice note from Perle Mesta, American minister to Luxembourg, wishing me a Merry Christmas.

I like the card from Bing and the boys, the many religious cards which predominate all the others. The one from Joan Caulfield and Frank Ross is particularly lovely.

Johnny Meyer gets back from Paris in time to spend Christmas with his best girl—his mother.

Parties, parties, parties! Never have there been as many, even in the pre-war days. The latest invitation comes from Mr. and Mrs. Marti von Dehn, who are entertaining Prince Christian of Hanover at a dinner party Monday night. He is the brother of the Queen of Greece, and a second cousin of young Queen Elizabeth.

That's all today. See you Monday.

Daily Bridge Lesson

BOTH CAN BE WRONG

WONDERING which of two partners was wrong, in the bidding of a disastrous hand, is often a quest for an answer that is right, regardless of what you say. The worst calamities usually come when both have let themselves get off the beam at one point or another, especially if the deal is a misfit, and most emphatically if the opponents also have a misfit which enables them to do a plethora of cross-ruffing.

(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

North said after the debacle that he should have shifted from 4-Clubs into 4-Hearts, South's first-bid suit, especially since he had one card of it. But he declared he was afraid that would encourage South to reach out for a slam. South opined that North was still more wrong in not bidding his diamonds on the second or third round. In that suit the damage would have been less. Even 3-No Trumps bid by either partner along the way would have been better. Probably South should have bid that anyway. In clubs, the deal was played in absolutely the worst of the five possible declarations, as any other suit or No Trumps would have been less costly.

West's heart J lead was ruffed by the club 3, the diamond A scored and the 7 was ruffed by the club 2, the heart 8 by the club 6, the diamond 4 by the club K and A, the heart 6 by the club 9. South then ruffed the diamond 2 with the club Q, scored the club J and led the club 7 to the 8. West laid down the spade A, then led the heart 9 to the A, South following with the heart K and club 4 to have a total of five tricks against the defenders' eight, so that he was down five.

Where freak distributions like this are in the hands of one partnership, it generally happens that the mechanics of the imperfect shuffle, which gave them those unbalanced patterns, also furnishes the opposing pair with a like imbalance, so that every suit is stacked against you unless you have one suit that fits.

Your Weekend Question

What are the special advantages of making an honor combination lead against a No Trump game contract, instead of a fourth-best or top-of-nothing opening from some suit in which you lack the necessary honors to justify it?

The Unborn Celebrity

The news that Lucille Ball was about to have a baby was whispered demurely into roughly 12,000,000 homes a week or so ago on the "I Love Lucy" program which, all the surveys hold, is still the nation's number one program. For the remaining weeks before the baby is due to be born, its advent will be kicked around on "I Love Lucy."

Since this is going to be a real child and not just a figment of the writer's imagination, I can't help but fal to musing about the effect on a child's personality of such widespread publicity. This kid, I keep telling myself, is a national institution before he's born. How's he going to live up to it? It's a tough rap for any baby and I offer my profound sympathies.

When it became apparent that Miss Ball and her husband and co-star, Desi Arnaz, were about to have their second child, the writers began to weave it into the script. The comedy program was placed, as it were, under forced draft. Desilu Productions turned out a flock of episodes far in advance of their current release so that Miss Ball could get a little rest before and after her child is born.

Whether it was because of this quickened pace or just normal wear and tear, "I Love Lucy" has not to my mind been as funny or as resourceful in its second season as it was in its first. Still, there's no question but that it commands the worshipful attention of an awful lot of people. Its ARB rating is around 65 which means it's far in front. The last Hooper rating gave it first place in five of six U.S. cities which serve 45 per cent of American sets.

The formula for "I Love Lucy" is, I guess, indestructible and you'll have to get resigned to seeing an awful lot of it. There is this young couple—Ricky and Lucy—see, and their marriage is beset by small mishaps, not the least of which is the constant effort of Lucy to muscle in on a man's world. Ricky invariably repels her. Sometimes the formula is reversed and Ricky tries to invade woman's sphere where he gets badly bruised.

There are, of course, the next door (or in this case, down stairs) neighbors who are replicas on a small scale of the stars. The husband-neighbor is the husband's best friend. This sort of palship, incidentally, is peculiar to American popular literature. Almost anywhere else, in Europe especially, the neighboring wife would be eyeing the neighboring husband and vice versa. But here every male hero has to have a man pal and every woman a lady pal. The battle between the sexes is more sharply drawn.

But it isn't the formula which makes "Lucy" a great show. It's Lucille Ball. She's a really great clown. All eyes and mouth, she can, with a twist of her lips, a bulging of the eyes, express despair, confusion, bewilderment, love, cunning. She's a wonder to behold, given any sort of material at all and even sometimes when she hasn't much. Desi is not in his wife's league but he has great charm and his contribution to "I Love Lucy" mustn't be underestimated. All the people who are now drawing up imitation "I Love Lucy's" musn't forget their first problem is to find another Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz. It won't be easy. It isn't the formula that makes "Lucy" so appealing; it's the personality and skill of its stars.

At its best, the show has some of the manic informality and improvisation of the early silent film comedies. They haven't time to beat an idea to death or to reshoot a comedy sequence again and again until the fun has been drained out of it. This year, it seems to me, some of the situations have been more than a little attenuated, that the basic premise has got a little too rigid and changeless. But Lucille Ball is always a joy to watch. And, besides, who am I to argue with 12,000,000 families?

Almost anywhere else, in Europe especially, the neighboring wife would be eyeing the neighboring husband and vice versa. But here every male hero has to have a man pal and every woman a lady pal. The battle between the sexes is more sharply drawn.

But it isn't the formula which makes "Lucy" a great show. It's Lucille Ball. She's a really great clown. All eyes and mouth, she can, with a twist of her lips, a bulging of the eyes, express despair, confusion, bewilderment, love, cunning. She's a wonder to behold, given any sort of material at all and even sometimes when she hasn't much. Desi is not in his wife's league but he has great charm and his contribution to "I Love Lucy" mustn't be underestimated. All the people who are now drawing up imitation "I Love Lucy's" musn't forget their first problem is to find another Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz. It won't be easy. It isn't the formula that makes "Lucy" so appealing; it's the personality and skill of its stars.

At its best, the show has some of the manic informality and improvisation of the early silent film comedies. They haven't time to beat an idea to death or to reshoot a comedy sequence again and again until the fun has been drained out of it. This year, it seems to me, some of the situations have been more than a little attenuated, that the basic premise has got a little too rigid and changeless. But Lucille Ball is always a joy to watch. And, besides, who am I to argue with 12,000,000 families?

Card of Thanks

We take this means to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness extended to us during the illness and following the death of our beloved husband and father, Francis D. Norton. We wish especially to thank Rev. Joseph Young, Lonaconing, those who sent floral tributes, those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral and those who sent generous donations.

WIFE and CHILDREN

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear Mother, Edith L. Gomer, who passed away five years ago today, Dec. 20, 1947.

The golden sun is shining
Upon our dear Mother's grave,
We love our mother,
But God loved her more,
But someday we will be with her,
And that will be a happy day
For all of us.

Sadly missed by Husband,
Earl Gomer, Sons & Family

Card of Thanks

We take this means to thank our friends and neighbors for the kindness extended to us during the illness and following the death of our beloved husband and father, Francis D. Norton. We wish especially to thank Rev. Joseph Young, Lonaconing, those who sent floral tributes, those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral and those who sent generous donations.

WIFE and CHILDREN

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dear Mother, Edith L. Gomer, who passed away five years ago today, Dec. 20, 1947.

The golden sun is shining
Upon our dear Mother's grave,
We love our mother,
But God loved her more,
But someday we will be with her,
And that will be a happy day
For all of us.

Sadly missed by Husband,
Earl Gomer, Sons & Family

Rails, Oils Lead Market's Push To Another 1952 High

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP)—A few railroads and oils, backed by a handful of other issues, pushed the stock market up today to a new 1952 high. It was the second new high registered this week.

Some gains were quite large, running to 8 points at times, but the list as a whole at the close ranged from fractions lower to around 2 points higher at the outside.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks added 40 cents and finished at $114.80, the best this year and the highest level for the average since June 4, 1930, when the total was $116.60.

There were many special features. Texas Pacific Land Trust gained 8 points at one time and ended 6¼ ahead at 160¼.

Aluminum Co. of America gained 3¾ at 93½ on the strength of a directors decision to split the common two for one.

With The Associated Press average of 60 stocks up 40 cents at $114.80, a new 1952 high, the industrial component gained 90 cents, railroads gained 60 cents, and the utilties lost 10 cents.

The list was fairly broad with 1,212 individual issues traded of which 524 advanced and 401 declined with 60 new highs and 21 new lows for the year touched during the session.

Volume at 2,050,000 shares passed the two million mark for the ninth time since the Eisenhower election. It hadn't been that high for a year before.

Pennsylvania Railroad was the most active stock in the list with 44,400 shares traded. It was followed by Baltimore & Ohio up ⅝ at 27⅜, Graham-Paige up ¼ at 2¾, and American & Foreign Power up ½ at 8⅞.

City Will Seek Bids On Water Tank Project

The Mayor and Council will advertise for bids Monday for foundation construction and corresponding work for a water tank on Wills Mountain to increase water pressure in North End.

Myer Rosefsky, owner of the Alto Salvage Company, Altoona, Pa., from whom the city has purchased an $18,000 second-hand 75,000-gallon tank, conferred with city officials yesterday.

He said the tank, located at Ridgeway, Pa., is ready for dismantling. The conference also dealt with arrangements for payment and contract details.

The council order Monday will include the concrete foundation for the tank, pipe galley beneath the foundation and laying of 1,500 feet of six-inch cast iron pipe, Mayor Roy W. Eves said. The pipe will stretch to and from the tank to the water main.

Eves explained the city is not equipped to do this work in the rocky terrain but will construct the foundation and pump house in addition to installing two electrical pumps.

The Alto firm's $18,000 bid includes dismantling the tank, transportation here and installation on the site to be prepared on Wills Mountain.

The tank is the result of several complaints from North End residents about water pressure in their homes. Mass meetings with the council have been held on occasions in efforts to iron out the situation.

Attending the conference were Water Commissioner William J. Edwards, George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum, Eves and Rosefsky.

Telegraph Boy Pays Fine In Bike Violation

A telegraph messenger boy was fined yesterday in Police Court after he was found guilty of not observing the motor vehicle laws with his bicycle.

The city code states a bicycle rider has to abide by the same traffic rules as a motor vehicle operator.

Robert Francis Steele, Mt. Savage Road, paid $5 for cycling through a stop sign without stopping.

Sgt. Frank A. Shober said the boy wheeled past him at the Bedford Street crossing in a careless manner.

The youth was also fined $10 for disorderly conduct for his actions during the arrest by Sgt. Shober and Officer John Daum.

Rails, Oils Lead Market's Push To Another 1952 High

NEW YORK, Dec. 19 (AP)—A few railroads and oils, backed by a handful of other issues, pushed the stock market up today to a new 1952 high. It was the second new high registered this week.

Some gains were quite large, running to 8 points at times, but the list as a whole at the close ranged from fractions lower to around 2 points higher at the outside.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks added 40 cents and finished at $114.80, the best this year and the highest level for the average since June 4, 1930, when the total was $116.60.

There were many special features. Texas Pacific Land Trust gained 8 points at one time and ended 6¼ ahead at 160¼.

Aluminum Co. of America gained 3¾ at 93½ on the strength of a directors decision to split the common two for one.

With The Associated Press average of 60 stocks up 40 cents at $114.80, a new 1952 high, the industrial component gained 90 cents, railroads gained 60 cents, and the utilties lost 10 cents.

The list was fairly broad with 1,212 individual issues traded of which 524 advanced and 401 declined with 60 new highs and 21 new lows for the year touched during the session.

Volume at 2,050,000 shares passed the two million mark for the ninth time since the Eisenhower election. It hadn't been that high for a year before.

Pennsylvania Railroad was the most active stock in the list with 44,400 shares traded. It was followed by Baltimore & Ohio up ⅝ at 27⅜, Graham-Paige up ¼ at 2¾, and American & Foreign Power up ¼ at 8⅞.

City Will Seek Bids On Water Tank Project

The Mayor and Council will advertise for bids Monday for foundation construction and corresponding work for a water tank on Wills Mountain to increase water pressure in North End.

Myer Rosefsky, owner of the Alto Salvage Company, Altoona, Pa., from whom the city has purchased an $18,000 second-hand 75,000-gallon tank, conferred with city officials yesterday.

He said the tank, located at Ridgeway, Pa., is ready for dismantling. The conference also dealt with arrangements for payment and contract details.

The council order Monday will include the concrete foundation for the tank, pipe galley beneath the foundation and laying of 1,500 feet of six-inch cast iron pipe, Mayor Roy W. Eves said. The pipe will stretch to and from the tank to the water main.

Eves explained the city is not equipped to do this work in the rocky terrain but will construct the foundation and pump house in addition to installing two electrical pumps.

The Alto firm's $18,000 bid includes dismantling the tank, transportation here and installation on the site to be prepared on Wills Mountain.

The tank is the result of several complaints from North End residents about water pressure in their homes. Mass meetings with the council have been held on occasions in efforts to iron out the situation.

Attending the conference were Water Commissioner William J. Edwards, George M. Hitchcock, superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, City Engineer Charles R. Nuzum, Eves and Rosefsky.

Telegraph Boy Pays Fine In Bike Violation

A telegraph messenger boy was fined yesterday in Police Court after he was found guilty of not observing the motor vehicle laws with his bicycle.

The city code states a bicycle rider has to abide by the same traffic rules as a motor vehicle operator.

Robert Francis Steele, Mt. Savage Road, paid $5 for cycling through a stop sign without stopping.

Sgt. Frank A. Shober said the boy wheeled past him at the Bedford Street crossing in a careless manner.

The youth was also fined $10 for disorderly conduct for his actions during the arrest by Sgt. Shober and Officer John Daum.

There was virtually no interference in the sound, and Mickey said the picture was "very clear."

Local Man Given Two-Year Term For Non-Support

Tried In Towson On Bigamy Charge

A local man who was given hearing earlier this week on a bigamy charge in Towson, yesterday was sentenced to two years in the Maryland House of Correction in Allegany County Juvenile Court on a charge of neglect and non-support of his wife and three minor children.

Authorities listed him as Ralph Clifton Wratchford, 36, of Bowman's Addition, who had been held by Baltimore County authorities under $2,500 bond on a bigamy charge.

A non-support warrant was first issued for Wratchford in May and sent to police in Baltimore County, where he was believed to be residing. Later the State's Attorney's office was notified by Towson authorities that Wratchford could not be found and the warrant was returned to Cumberland.

Married Second Woman

Further investigation by County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya uncovered evidence that the local man had married another woman in Baltimore County. After Lilya notified Baltimore County authorities, Detective Sergeants William H. Weinkam and Howard Bates came to Cumberland November 9, to investigate.

Wratchford's wife told Baltimore County authorities she had been married to the local man since December 3, 1939. Lilya, meanwhile sent a copy of the marriage certificate filed in the Court House here.

Further investigation, according to Baltimore County police, disclosed that Wratchford had recently married Fannie I. Justice, 42, of near Towson, and was living with her on a farm there.

Had Changed Name

A few days later, Wratchford was arrested on a warrant charging him with bigamy. Baltimore County police Wratchford had been using the name of Ralph Brooks in Baltimore County and had married the second woman under this name.

Wratchford was given a hearing on November 10 before Magistrate John Caslin on the bigamy charge and was held under $2,500 bond for action of the grand jury. Meanwhile, local authorities sent a detainer for Wratchford on the non-support charge.

Lilya said yesterday a hearing was held earlier this week and according to Mrs. Wratchford, who was a witness at the Towson trial, Wratchford pleaded guilty to the bigamy count. Mrs. Wratchford told Lilya the court did not pass sentence but released the local man for action in the local Juvenile Court.

Fatal Accident Suits Ask For $53,000 Damages

Three more suits seeking a total of $53,000 damages in the McMullen Highway crash of August 31 which took five lives were docketed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Defendants in all three suits were Lewis Howard Allwine, and his father, Lewis Thomas Allwine, both of Highland Park, N. J.

Chief among the three suits, all docketed by Attorney Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., was a $50,000 action for the use of Genevieve Y'Vonne Kalbaugh, Westernport, 24-year old widow of Charles Lee Kalbaugh, and her three children, Sandra Joyce, four; Charles Lee, Jr., three, and Karen J., 19 months.

Charles Lee Kalbaugh was one of the five killed in the tragic accident.

In the declaration, Whitworth cites that Lewis Howard Allwine was driving his father's car along Route 220, between Cresaptown and Rawlings, in the early hours of August 31. He charges that Allwine brought the car to a stop on the left side of the road and permited it to remain in a standing position with the headlights burning. These headlights and the position of the car confused Timothy Gilmore, the driver and one of the five subsequent victims of the crash. The car he was driving collided with Allwine's stopped vehicle.

Fort Hill Students Combine Talents For Yule Activities

Art, dramatic and music students at Fort Hill High School are combining in the presentation of traditional Christmas activities again this season.

Some 50 art students have blended their talents in painting 13 of the third-floor windows in religious scenes. Miss Lola Burrall, art instructor, has been supervising this work.

These painted windows always attract the interest of residents living on the hills near the school. Lights are turned on behind these paintings and they can be seen for a distance at night. Many Cumberlanders drive up to Fort Hill from other sections of the city during the Christmas season to see the attractive windows.

"The Story of the Nativity," in song and pageant will be presented by Miss Helen Smtih's Fort Hill Players at the combined assembly for junior and senior high school pupils at 10:30 a. m. Monday.

Fred Hillegas will serve as narrator. Musical background will be furnished by the 70-voice Fort Hill choir, directed by Miss E. Annetta Yates.

Three of the choir members, Edgar Dawson, Shirley Kessell and William Shinholt, will be featured in solos during this Christmas program.

An octet also will sing "When De Star Shine." Members are William Shinholt, Edgar Dawson, Max Smith, Lee Fisher, Delores Rowley, Nancy Mease, Shirley Kessel and Ruth Bishop.

A junior high school double quartet will present a 30-minute Christmas program at 9 a. m. tomorrow over WCUM. Members are Lawrence Stowell, George Kalbaugh, David McCullough, Darrell Henry, David Dawson, James Raines, Robert McKinney and Clarence Sibley.

A large Christmas tree has been erected in the main corridor at Fort Hill by the solid geometry and trigonometry stuednts of Arthur S. Davis Jr.

Fort Hill music students also have scheduled a number of Christmas performances in the community. Thursday night the Junior High double quartet and the senior high octet presented a Christmas program at City Shrine Club for the Woman's Republican Club.

The Fort Hill choir will present "The Story of the Nativity" Sunday night at Grace Methodist Church. The singers appeared at Davis Memorial Methodist Church last Sunday. The octet also appeared before the Business and Professional Woman's Club at the YMCA recently.

Miss Betsy Ross Rankin is advisor to this club. Dorothy McDade, a senior, is directing the performance.

This is a departure from the usual Christmas assembly, which in the past has been primarily musical.

There are four speaking parts in the play. Joann Walker is portraying Holger, the peasant girl, whose two penny contribution to the cathedral made its chimes ring. Others in the cast are Ellen Beneman, as Steen; Leon Armentrout, as Bertil, and Margaret Funk, as the old woman.

Six other ADK members will have non-speaking pantomime parts in the presentation. They are Bernard Beerman, Edmund Goldman, June Laber, Lois McCullough, Joel Jacobson and Herbert Gaither.

This will be presented twice Monday morning. At the first showing, for junior high school pupils, the Junior Choral Club will provide the musical background. For the senior high assembly the senior choir will provide the music. Both organizations are directed by Miss Dorothy Willison.

In another Christmas activity, the Junior Art Club, directed by Miss Betty C. Strawmire, is sponsoring a contest among the school home rooms. Each home room is decorating the antlers of Rudolph, the red-nosed reindeer, and is placing the display in the room doorway. A prize will be given for the best-decorated antlers.

Parsons Mayor To Call Meeting On Police Issue

Resigns Because Of Crosten Appointment

Mayor John Kenney of Parsons, W. Va., said last night he will call a special meeting of the Parsons Town Council prior to December 31 to introduce additional information in connection with the recent appointment of D. E. Crosten as chief of police.

Mayor Kenney and Recorder Tracy Nestor handed in their resignations last week at the regular meeting after the Council approved the appointment of Crosten, who is now serving as sheriff of Tucker County.

The mayor, who said he also was speaking for Nestor, said they have notified the Council of their resignation because "Crosten was appointed chief of police of Parsons illegally."

Mayor Kenney added he has written to the Attorney General in Charleston and has received a letter which he will present to the Council at the special meeting next week.

Two special meetings and one regular meeting already have been primarily devoted to the question of naming a chief of police. The first meeting was called November 25 following the resignation of Ted Cox, then chief of police. His resignation was effective November 26.

At the meeting applications were presented for the post by William Gilmore and by Crosten. It was pointed out that Crosten would not be able to serve until his term of sheriff expired December 31. Members of the Council voted that Gilmore act as temporary policeman until December 31.

The next day, however, Parsons found itself without police protection since the present chief's resignation was effective and also that Gilmore refused the job under the terms set up by the Council.

This led to the calling of a second special meeting that day. At this gathering, two other applications were added for the post—those of W. W. Myers and Charles Swearingen. At the same time, the Council members were instructed that it was legal to elect Sheriff Crosten to the post, but, City Attorney William Harman pointed out, Crosten would not be able to serve in that position until after December 31, when his term as sheriff expired.

The vote taken by the council showed three votes for Crosten, two for Gilmore, one for Swearingen and none for Myers. Crosten was thus named to the post, but Parsons was still without a police force until December 31.

At the suggestion of one of the councilmen, Kirk Kee was asked to act as police chief until the last of the month, but Kee refused. City Attorney Harman recommended the Constable Brock Kyle be hired until December 31. It was approved.

The issue came up again at the regular Council meeting last Saturday. Members debated the legality of the previous two special meetings. It was pointed out that one of the councilmen was absent during the last special meeting and was not present for balloting on the four applications for the post.

This led to the fact that Kermit Crews, as a state employe, was regarded as not qualified as councilman. Later Crews handed in his resignation which was approved by the Council. Kirk Kee next filed application to fill Crews' unexpired term as councilman from the First Ward. Kee was elected and sworn in.

The Council then heard from visitors Dr. Guy H. Michael, Sr., Dr. S. M. Lilienfeld, Luther Bennett and John M. Ours, who praised the Council on its selection of Crosten as chief of police.

Following talks by the visitors, Mayor Kenney and Recorder Nestor handed in their resignations to become effective December 31 or until the Council is able to fill their vacancies. On a motion by one of the councilmen, the Council voted to delay action on the resignations until the next meeting.

Local Man Given Two-Year Term For Non-Support

Tried In Towson On Bigamy Charge

A local man who was given hearing earlier this week on a bigamy charge in Towson, yesterday was sentenced to two years in the Maryland House of Correction in Allegany County Juvenile Court on a charge of neglect and non-support of his wife and three minor children.

Authorities listed him as Ralph Clifton Wratchford, 36, of Bowman's Addition, who had been held by Baltimore County authorities under $2,500 bond on a bigamy charge.

A non-support warrant was first issued for Wratchford in May and sent to police in Baltimore County, where he was believed to be residing. Later the State's Attorney's office was notified by Towson authorities that Wratchford could not be found and the warrant was returned to Cumberland.

Married Second Woman

Further investigation by County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya uncovered evidence that the local man had married another woman in Baltimore County. After Lilya notified Baltimore County authorities, Detective Sergeants William H. Weinkam and Howard Bates came to Cumberland November 9, to investigate.

Wratchford's wife told Baltimore County authorities she had been married to the local man since December 3, 1939. Lilya, meanwhile sent a copy of the marriage certificate filed in the Court House here.

Further investigation, according to Baltimore County police, disclosed that Wratchford had recently married Fannie I. Justice, 42, of near Towson, and was living with her on a farm there.

Had Changed Name

A few days later, Wratchford was arrested on a warrant charging him with bigamy. Baltimore County police Wratchford had been using the name of Ralph Brooks in Baltimore County and had married the second woman under this name.

Wratchford was given a hearing on November 10 before Magistrate John Caslin on the bigamy charge and was held under $2,500 bond for action of the grand jury. Meanwhile, local authorities sent a detainer for Wratchford on the non-support charge.

Lilya said yesterday a hearing was held earlier this week and according to Mrs. Wratchford, who was a witness at the Towson trial, Wratchford pleaded guilty to the bigamy count. Mrs. Wratchford told Lilya the court did not pass sentence but released the local man for action in the local Juvenile Court.

Fatal Accident Suits Ask For $53,000 Damages

Three more suits seeking a total of $53,000 damages in the McMullen Highway crash of August 31 which took five lives were docketed yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

Defendants in all three suits were Lewis Howard Allwine, and his father, Lewis Thomas Allwine, both of Highland Park, N. J.

Chief among the three suits, all docketed by Attorney Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., was a $50,000 action for the use of Genevieve Y'Vonne Kalbaugh, Westernport, 24-year old widow of Charles Lee Kalbaugh, and her three children, Sandra Joyce, four; Charles Lee, Jr., three, and Karen J., 19 months.

Charles Lee Kalbaugh was one of the five killed in the tragic accident.

In the declaration, Whitworth cites that Lewis Howard Allwine was driving his father's car along Route 220, between Cresaptown and Rawlings, in the early hours of August 31. He charges that Allwine brought the car to a stop on the left side of the road and permitted it to remain in a standing position with the headlights burning. These headlights and the position of the car confused Timothy Gilmore, the driver and one of the five subsequent victims of the crash. The car he was driving collided with Allwine's stopped vehicle.

Parsons Mayor To Call Meeting On Police Issue

Resigns Because Of Crosten Appointment

Mayor John Kenney of Parsons, W. Va., said last night he will call a special meeting of the Parsons Town Council prior to December 31 to introduce additional information in connection with the recent appointment of D. E. Crosten as chief of police.

Mayor Kenney and Recorder Tracy Nestor handed in their resignations last week at the regular meeting after the Council approved the appointment of Crosten, who is now serving as sheriff of Tucker County.

The mayor, who said he also was speaking for Nestor, said they have notified the Council of their resignation because "Crosten was appointed chief of police of Parsons illegally."

Mayor Kenney added he has written to the Attorney General in Charleston and has received a letter which he will present to the Council at the special meeting next week.

Two special meetings and one regular meeting already have been primarily devoted to the question of naming a chief of police. The first meeting was called November 25 following the resignation of Ted Cox, then chief of police. His resignation was effective November 26.

At the meeting applications were presented for the post by William Gilmore and by Crosten. It was pointed out that Crosten would not be able to serve until his term of sheriff expired December 31. Members of the Council voted that Gilmore act as temporary policeman until December 31.

The next day, however, Parsons found itself without police protection since the present chief's resignation was effective and also that Gilmore refused the job under the terms set up by the Council.

This led to the calling of a second special meeting that day. At this gathering, two other applications were added for the post—those of W. W. Myers and Charles Swearingen. At the same time, the Council members were instructed that it was legal to elect Sheriff Crosten to the post, but, City Attorney William Harman pointed out, Crosten would not be able to serve in that position until after December 31, when his term as sheriff expired.

The vote taken by the council showed three votes for Crosten, two for Gilmore, one for Swearingen and none for Myers. Crosten was thus named to the post, but Parsons was still without a police force until December 31.

At the suggestion of one of the councilmen, Kirk Kee was asked to act as police chief until the last of the month, but Kee refused. City Attorney Harman recommended the Constable Brock Kyle be hired until December 31. It was approved.

The issue came up again at the regular Council meeting last Saturday. Members debated the legality of the previous two special meetings. It was pointed out that one of the councilmen was absent during the last special meeting and was not present for balloting on the four applications for the post.

This led to the fact that Kermit Crews, as a state employe, was regarded as not qualified as councilman. Later Crews handed in his resignation which was approved by the Council. Kirk Kee next filed application to fill Crews' unexpired term as councilman from the First Ward. Kee was elected and sworn in.

The Council then heard from visitors Dr. Guy H. Michael, Sr., Dr. S. M. Liilienfeld, Luther Bennett and John M. Ours, who praised the Counell on its selection of Crosten as chief of police.

Following talks by the visitors, Mayor Kenney and Recorder Nestor handed in their resignations to become effective December 31 or until the Council is able to fill their vacancies. On a motion by one of the councilmen, the Council voted to delay action on the resignations until the next meeting.
